Nazi Counter-Assault Smashed As Allies Hit For Siegfried Line

REUNION IN FRANCE. An American soldier and a Frenchman who became friends by a coincidence of World War I find another war throwing them together as they reminisce over a bottle of cider. Visiting Monsieur Petit Victor, left, of Oise, France, is Sgt. Lewis F. Clancy of Plattsburg, N. Y., whose battalion made its headquarters at Victor's house in the last war.

DEWEY ADVISES SECURITY SPEED

G.O.P. Terms Peace Steps 'Non-Partisan' Matter

By The Associated Press.

EN ROUTE WITH DEWEY, Sept. 9—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey turned northward to his native state of Michigan to start 10 days of grass root campaigning today after declaring at Louisville, Ky., Friday night for the formation of a force-wielding world security organization without waiting for the war's end.

The Republican presidential nominee traveled toward Lansing, without any scheduled stops, for conferences with Gov. Harry F. Kelly and leaders of political, farm, labor, Negro and other organizations.

Gov. Dewey made it plain before he left Louisville that he is ready to take issue with anyone whose views do not coincide with his.

He called "a little naive" a written question submitted by Warren Moscow, reporter for the New York Times, inquiring if the nominee agreed with Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R) of Michigan that an international peace organization "should not be established until after the peace settlement".

Backs Force Where Needed

"The international organization that we will achieve at the end of this war only will be commenced after 60 nations have been brought together and have agreed on the structure," the nominee said.

The war pace is so swift, Gov. Dewey went on, that none can tell when it may end and the nearer we are to being in agreement on its form, the nearer we will be to the point where it can begin effective work.

He came out flatly last night before a cheering, stamping, whistling crowd in the Louisville armory in support of the principle of using force where necessary to prevent future wars.

In his second major campaign speech, delivered before the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs at Louisville, the

FIERCE BATTLE RAGES IN ITALY

Casualties Heavy As Yanks Fight For Po Valley Gate

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 9—A savage battle is raging for Rimini and the gateway to the Po valley without substantial changes in positions and heavy casualties are being suffered by both the Germans and the Eighth army, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters announced today.

Gambling desperately to prevent a break-through that would enable the Allies to sweep into northern Italy and envelop the whole Gothic Line, Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring threw his infantry and armored forces into a series of heavy counter-attacks yesterday.

They extended along the Adriatic sector of the front from the coast to the village of Croce, six and a half miles inland and nine miles southwest of Rimini.

These counter-thrusts were beaten off without loss of ground by the Eighth army and British troops seized and held Croce, which was the scene of prolonged day and night seesaw fighting.

Along the coast, where the Canadians fought to the banks of the Marano river, within four miles of Rimini's outskirts two days ago, the Allied command reported only that patrols are maintaining contact with the enemy.

Palazo and the neighboring Hill 151, six miles inland, were seized by the British, who beat off determined tank counter-attacks.

The village of Menghio, 1,000 yards west of Croce and the same distance south of Hill 151, also was retained by the British in the face of desperate Nazi lunges to regain lost ground.

Two miles farther inland the battle rages in the town of Gemmano for the third day with unabated fury. The Germans still hold the western half of the town.

PRESIDENT, CHURCHILL WILL MEET IN QUEBEC

(By The Canadian Press)

QUEBEC, Sept. 9—Quebec will be the scene of the next meeting between Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt at a date yet to be decided.

The two leaders, who have not met since they were at Teheran last November, will plan the conquest of Japan as well as the final phases of the European war.

News correspondents and camera men are here in force and the great Chateau Frontenac, with its 800 rooms, has been taken over in its entirety for the official delegates.

City To Get $38,000; County Expects $30,768 Grant

The Ohio legislature's fund action Wednesday has assured $68,768 in grants to Columbiana county schools, authorities estimated today.

The East Liverpool city school district will receive approximately $38,000 in extra state funds for wage increases to teachers, janitors and other employes from the $8,860,000 appropriation voted by the legislature, Supt. M. W. Essex said.

The distribution will be made on a basis of $8 per pupil which, according to the enrollment at the

Sugar Supplies Dwindle Here In Face Of Increased Canning

A growing shortage of sugar in the midst of the canning season was felt today in East Liverpool and most northeastern Ohio communities.

Supplies in local wholesalers' warehouses were dwindling fast or completley exhausted and the retailers they serve were short of sugar as a result.

Long-delayed shipments caused a huge reduction in the sugar backlog of one wholesaler, who said his firm had been able to keep its district customers well supplied until the first of this week. He expects relief by early next week—if anticipated shipments arrive.

A manpower shortage in manufacturing and distribution was blamed for the dearth of sugar, rather than any actual shortage of the commodity. A few months ago, a carload lot generally was delivered within three to five days after it was ordered, but recently the lapse has been eight to 10 weeks, one wholesaler said.

The head of another wholesale house declared his stock of granulated white sugar is completely exhausted and he has only about 25 cases of packaged brown sugar remaining.

With two carloads on order — one since July 17 and the other since Aug. 8—he expected a large delivery soon, but said the difficulties of wartime transportation made it hard to predict when it will arrive.

"We anticipated the shortage because delayed shipments required us to dip into our inventories," he said. "And 95 percent of our telephone calls in the last week have been for sugar."

A larger market here was well-supplied Friday, but expected curtailed shipments next week, while two others were without sugar, after selling thousands of pounds

BALKANS MAY BE NAZI-FREE WITHIN WEEK

Russians Greet Bulgars As Brothers In Arms After Sofia Wars On Reich

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 9—A Red army offensive through Bulgaria, coupled with the combined operation of Marshal Tito's Partisans and Allied Commando units in Yugoslavia, appears likely today to free the Balkan peninsula entirely of Germans in less than a week.

The drive also is expected to open sea lanes from the Mediterranean to Ukrainian ports in the near future. This would cancel the need for the vast overland supply route from the Persian gulf.

(Berlin reported, meanwhile, that the Russians have opened a new offensive on the route to Krakow in southern Poland.)

At the same time, a Russian armored force driving "down hill" from the strategic heart of Transylvania pushed within 128 miles of the flat open frontier of Hungary.

Bulgaria's declaration of war on Germany persuaded the Soviet Union to accept Sofia's request for an armistice and Russian veterans who moved into Bulgaria from Romania on a 135-mile front greeted the Bulgars as brothers in arms.

Front dispatches said no hostilities jarred the Russian advance across Bulgaria, which followed the capture of two big ports, Ruschuk (Ruse) on the Danube and Varna on the Black sea. Presumably the Bulgarian army, now a co-belligerent, will be assigned an active role in the Balkan cleanup.

The Kremlin, through the press and radio, continued to call on the Hungarian people to follow Bulgaria in abandoning the doomed Hitlerite clique and save their independence.

Bulgaria's outright participation in the war turned approximately one-third of the total area of the Balkans into Allied territory.

It transformed the German withdrawals from southern Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece and the Aegean islands into desperate action which might end in final disaster at any moment.

Small blockade runners slipping up the Adriatic sea under the cover of darkness are the only hope of escape for Germans on the western side of the peninsula.

On the east the Athens-Salonika-Nis-Belgrade railway is under severe air attack and is being raided ceaselessly by Yugoslav and Greek partisans.

The Bulgarian divisions could cut the trans-Balkan railway in the vicinity of Nis within a matter of hours.

Georgiev Made Premier

By The Associated Press.

The Sofia radio announced today that former Premier Kimon Georgiev has taken over the premiership of Bulgaria from Konstantin Muraviev and formed a new government.

The broadcast, reported by the federal communications commission, gave no explanation of the shift. Muraviev's cabinet Friday declared war on Germany after requesting an armistice from Russia.

Liner Rex Left Burning In Adriatic Waters After Blow By Rocket-Firing Allied Planes

WHEN REX WAS QUEEN OF ITALIAN MERCHANTMEN

Here's how 51,000-ton liner looked during peacetime.

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 9—The 51,000-ton liner Rex, onetime queen of the Italian merchant fleet and an Atlantic record holder, lay burning in the northern Adriatic sea off Trieste today after a blistering attack by rocket-firing Beaufighters.

More than 120 rockets hit the big liner, some below the waterline, and reconnaissance disclosed she is lying motionless with a 60-degree list to port.

In August, 1933, the Rex crossed the Atlantic from Gibraltar to Ambrose Light, in New York harbor, a distance of 3,181 miles, in four days, 13 hours and 58 minutes.

An air force report said German naval experts were believed preparing to sink the Rex to block Trieste harbor.

Two days ago an RAF plane crew saw the big ship being towed south of Trieste. She was listing slightly.

Yesterday, while she was at anchor, a coastal air force of Beaufighters attacked just before noon, sending 59 rockets crashing into the target.

Later in the day, more Beaufighters from the Balkan air force added the finishing touches with 64 rocket hits.

Crewmen reported after the last attack that a 500-foot column of smoke rose from one end of the vessel, that two-thirds of her decks were submerged and flames were gushing from her entire length.

ONE SUPER-FORTRESS LOST ON LATEST RAID

Others Now Accounted For, 20th Air Force Reports

By The Associated Press.

One super-Fortress is missing and presumed lost as a result of Friday's B-29 attack on Ashan, Manchuria, the 20th air force reported today.

All other planes of the large task force which made the attack have now been accounted for, a communique said.

The text of communique No. 13 follows:

"Complete preliminary reports of yesterday's B-29 super-Fortress attack on Japanese-dominated Anshan, in Manchuria, reveal that one of our aircraft is missing and presumed to be lost. All other aircraft which participated in the mission now have been accounted for.

"Revised reports also show that our gunners shot down seven enemy fighter planes, probably destroyed 10 others and damaged 11.

"Early appraisal of damage at the target indicates numerous hits within the target area and the crews of the last planes to reach the target area report their objectives obscured by clouds of smoke."

The giant bombers overwhelmed Japan's Manchurian air defenses,

Dedication Ceremony To Be Held Oct. 4 For City's New Honor Roll

East Liverpool's new honor roll, which arrived Friday from a Boston factory, will be dedicated Oct. 4 at a colorful parade and ceremony, the Joint Farewell association decided last night at a special meeting in the City hall.

Appointing two seven-men committees to arrange the program and parade, the committee said the board listing nearly 4,000 district servicemen's names will be assembled and erected Monday at the northeast corner of the City hall fronting on West Sixth st.

Meanwhile, 16 more contributions totalling $103 left only $604 to be raised to cover the cost of the $3,900 board. A total of $3,193

1,000 U. S. BOMBERS HIT RUHR, RHINELAND

Industrial, Rail Bases Torn Ahead Of Allied Armies

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 9—More than 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by more than 250 Mustangs, smashed today at industrial and rail targets in the Ruhr and Rhineland ahead of the advancing Allied armies.

The big American bombers, striking targets in Germany for the second successive day in support of the mounting ground offensive, hit Mainz, Mannheim and Dusseldorf.

During the night, RAF Mosquitos smacked at Nurenberg again, rounding out a heavy day which saw Brest pounded twice and the Le Havre and Boulogne garrisons again battered by the big bombers.

Heavy bomber attacks were carried out Friday against oil plants at Ludwigshafen, rail yards at Karlsruhe and depots and factories on the outskirts of Mainz.

A constant patrol was kept Friday night over shipping around the Dutch islands, although pilots reported no concentrations which might suggest evacuation attempts.

Mosquitos set bridges afire in the Flushing area of southern Holland, where the Germans are trying to escape from Belgium by crossing the Schelde, and also in the Rotterdam vicinity.

The Nurenberg attack was a highly concentrated 2-minute affair.

Ninth air force Thunderbolts and Lightnings in the second attack of the day on Brest Friday evening strafed and bombed gun emplacements, tank traps and a rebuilt fort.

Col. William Greenfield of Dayton, O., led the squadron which hit the fort and completely destroyed groups of small buildings within the walls.

Americans Plunge To Within Artillery Range Of Defenses

Yanks Push Ahead In Key Sector Around German Border City Of Aachen; Three U.S., One British Army Set For Big Blow; Troops Roll Beyond Liege

By The Associated Press.

The biggest American fighting force ever massed on a foreign continent closed in for the Battle of Germany today and punched to within heavy artillery range of the Siegfried Line in the key sector around the German border city of Aachen on the approaches to the Ruhr. Three American armies and a British army are being employed in the gigantic operation.

Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, meanwhile, crushed a large-scale German counter-attack on the Moselle river sector of eastern France, knocking out 30 to 40 enemy tanks and capturing more than 700 prisoners, a battle-front dispatch said today.

The British Second army beat to pieces a last-hope German attempt to break out of the coastal entrapment between Lille and Gent in Belgium. The Germans desperately are rallying reinforcements and fighting with bitter determination in these preliminaries to the Battle of Germany.

These are the positions of the American armies: The First army in Belgium drove beyond the captured Belgian fortress city of Liege to less than 18 miles from the German frontier in the vicinity of Aachen.

The Third army has crossed the Moselle river in five places around Metz and Nancy in eastern France.

The Seventh army, which came up from the Mediterranean, is driving down the last 25 miles to the Belfort gap north of Switzerland.

British Army Holds Its Bridgehead

To the north, the British Second army held its five-mile-deep bridgehead over the Albert canal against increasing fierce resistance as the Germans battled to stem this flanking sweep toward the northern anchor of the Siegfried Line at Cleve, a German border town 65 miles southeast of Amsterdam.

Aachen, toward which Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army troops are driving, was the original northern anchor of the Siegfried Line, but the Germans in 1939 hastily extended the line 65 miles farther north to Cleve.

Supreme headquarters masked the exact positions of the forward elements of the four Allied armies, concealing from the Germans which columns are engaged in feints and which will deliver the smashing blow.

To the west, British, Canadians and Poles closed in on the last of the Nazi-held coast. They seized the Belgian ports of Costende and Nieuport without a fight and hemmed the Germans into cramped pockets around their coastal ports near the Holland line.

Air reconnaissance showed none of the large-scale shipping movements that would indicate a Nazi attempt at sea-borne Dunkerque from the channel coast traps.

The U. S. Eighth air force for the second successive day hurled a force of 1,000 bombers against the Rhineland-Ruhr rail and industrial targets.

British and American planes kept up the aerial battering of the German garrisons besieged in the ports of Brest and Le Havre.

Last night Allied naval headquarters disclosed that in the first 28 days of the invasion 1,000,000 men were transported to France.

In the last war the total of American military personnel in Europe was slightly more than 2,-

AMERICANS PUSH ON BELFORT GAP

Drive Only 25 Miles From Route Into Germany

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 9—American Seventh army forces, driving rapidly northeast through the Doubs river valley from Besancon, have reached a point less than 25 miles from the Belfort gap route into southwestern Germany, Allied headquarters announced today.

Already they have covered at least half the distance between Besancon and the city of Belfort, Allied headquarters announced.

An Associated Press dispatch from the French-Swiss frontier Friday night said three Allied motorized columns are approaching the city, with the most advanced only 10 miles distant. This dispatch said Allied artillery opened up on the city as early as 4 a. m. yesterday.

("The Germans, in strength in good positions, appear determined to defend the gap," the dispatch said.)

U.S. Commander On Saipan Says He Relieved Army Chief

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith of the U. S. marines, commanding general of American forces which drove the Japanese from Saipan, reported today he was "forced" to relieve army Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith, who commanded army forces during that operation.

The marine general, now commanding the fleet marine force in the Pacific, gave no details at a news conference of circumstances that led to his action while the battle for Saipan in the western Pacific Marianas still was in progress.

"I am not given to passing the buck," he said, "but as you seek details concerning this incident I remind you that Gen. Smith is an army officer and I must refer you to the war department."

His statement was made at a news conference in which he previously had emphasized the unity

PRESIDENT BIDS FOR ACTIONS TO CHECK CARTELS

Statement Holds Interest In View Of Plans To Confer Again With Churchill

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—President Roosevelt Tuesday suddenly called for international agreements to curb cartel practices of the kind which have been a large factor in Britain's development as a great commercial power.

At the same time, the chief executive demanded "the eradication" of German cartels, such as the I. G. Farben Trust which the Nazis have used to penetrate peaceful countries for their political and miliary ends.

Statement Studied

The President issued his declaration against cartels in a letter to Secretary of State Hull and immediately afterward it was learned that the United States is preparing to propose to its Allies, Britain and Russia, the destruction of German cartels and also is making more long-range plans for a United Nations' conference—probably preceded by a smaller meeting along the lines of the Dumbarton Oaks security talks—to work out anti-cartel measures.

The President's pronouncement at this time was studied here by politicians and diplomats alike who sought to evaluate (1) its importance in this presidential election year as a statement of international economic policy and (2) its relation to the chief executive's forthcoming conference with Prime Minister Churchill.

Difficulty Admitted

Authorities here concede that any major change in the cartel system will be quite difficult to bring about internally in Britain and that as an issue of British foreign policy it is a question of utmost importance.

The best immediate estimate appeared to be that the declaration against cartels adds another subject to the agenda which the President and prime minister may discuss in this meeting that coincides with the concluding phase of the war in Europe and the opening phase of a new period in Europe's economic and diplomatic history.

Mr. Roosevelt covered the whole subject of cartels in a single letter without seeking to distinguish sharply between those of Allied powers and those which have served the purposes of the enemy. A cartel is defined by economists as a system of controlling prices, production and patents and of allocating markets by agreements among independent companies. This is distinct from a "combine", which is a single organized unit that operates as one company regardless of its size.

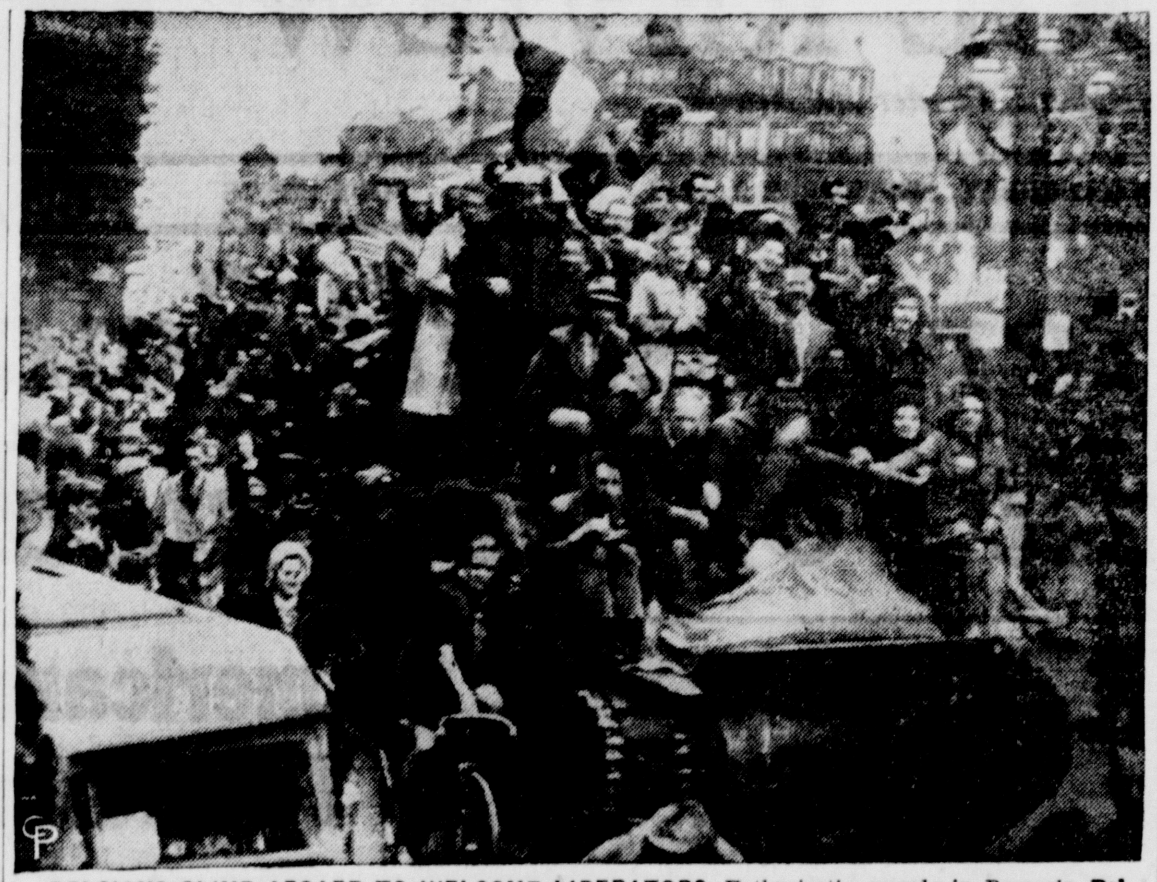
FOOD GAIN STRESSED BY FARM ECONOMIST

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 — Theodore Schultz, University of Chicago agricultural economist, predicts 4,000,000 farms by 1950 will produce a third more food than did 6,000,000 before the war.

"Never before in history has society been so near to having enough foor for so many people," Mr. Schultz said in a prepared address to the 20th institute of the Norman Wait Harris Foundation.

"Since the war alone, agricultural production in the United States has been increased fully one-fourth, while the number of farms has shrunk perhaps one-tenth, the farm population has declined one-sixth and the labor supply has lost much in quantity and quality."



BELGIANS CLIMB ABOARD TO WELCOME LIBERATORS. Enthusiastic crowds in Brussels, Belgium, swarmed over this British tank entering their city as they hailed the liberating troops.

Was Once Read Out Of Party

Ex-Sen. Reed, League Of Nations Foe, Dies

By The Associated Press.

ALPENA, Mich., Sept. 9—James A. Reed, former Missouri senator, outspoken critic of presidents and once read out of the Democratic party for his fight against the League of Nations, died Friday at his summer home near Fairview, Mich. He was 82. Stricken with a severe cold and bronchitis two weeks ago, Mr. Reed was treated in an Alpena hospital, but returned to his 6,500-acre ranch last Sunday, where his condition became worse.

Mr. Reed

Oxygen was administered Friday morning, but he died in the afternoon with Mrs. Reed, the former Nell Donnelly of Kansas City, at his bedside.

The body of the former United States senator was brought to Alpena yesterday and will be sent to Kansas City for funeral services.

An Ohio farm boy trained in law in Iowa, Mr. Reed became a county prosecutor in Missouri and twice mayor of Kansas City before he was elected to the United States senate, where he rose swiftly to national prominence through his attacks on the League of Nations and national prohibition.

Mr. Reed always believed that events fully vindicated his historic stand.

"It was a wonderful institution," he said of the league in one of his last interviews, "with one major fault—it just wouldn't work."

And this vitriolic orator, who became one of the leaders of what President Woodrow Wilson once branded "The Battalion of Death", remained so sure of his ground that he brushed off as "visionaries" all those who developed plans for a worldwide order to be set up after World War II.

Shifted Soon To Roosevelt

Tall, erect, white-maned, with eyes that never lost their glare when speaking of something he thought was wrong, Mr. Reed had two objections of any post-war plan.

First, he declared, no one had enough facts to build any workable organization. Second, he claimed, human nature would defeat any plan eventually, even though it got off to a successful start.

This vigorous fighter, who was read out of his own Democratic party by President Wilson for his opposition to the league, later transferred the scorn he once used on Mr. Wilson to President Roosevelt,

He opposed Mr. Roosevelt in his campaign for a third term and four years later headed an important committee on resolutions of the short-lived American Democratic Committee, pledged to the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Mr. Reed, who served only 18 years in the United States senate but who left there a record written indelibly in the nation's history, told a Kansas City business group at a luncheon in May, 1944:

"Mr. Roosevelt failed to pack the Supreme Court, but he polluted it." He said the Montgomery Ward case then in the news was an instance of "bayonet law" likely to spread in the United States and added, in discussing slighting remarks concerning the Constitution, attributed to the New Deal administration:

"What would you abolish, Franklin? Would it be the right to trial by jury, the right of speedy and public trial? Would you deprive anyone of life or liberty except by judgment of his peers? Is that horse-and-buggy philosophy or the philosophy of the greatest body of men ever assembled on this earth?"

Saw 'Bayonet Rule'

Of the Montgomery Ward case, Mr. Reed said that "it appears that the rule of law is to be abolished and bayonet rule substituted. The opinion of the attorney general, carried to its logical conclusion, means the President can use the army and navy against the people of the United States. Hitler claimed no greater power. In my opinion, the people of the United States utterly will repudiate bayonet rule".

Casually in conversation with a friend recently, Mr. Reed unconsciously wrote his own epitaph: "It seems to me that I have been fighting, fighting ever since I was a child", he said.

The word "compromise" did not exist in Mr. Reed's political career. He fought great court battles, some as brilliant after he was 70 as when he was 40 years younger, engaged in seething political campaigns that made his name a byword of hate in his own Democratic party and fought President Wilson to such a standstill on the league in the historical senate fight that Mr. Wilson tried to drive him from the party at the national convention in San Francisco in 1920.

Mr. Reed fought his way back to senate reelection in 1922, was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency at Houston in 1928, then voluntarily retired from the senate to return to Kansas City to practice law.

Came Out For Willkie

Mr. Reed had a Grecian face, but a fighting one, and the spirit and vigor of a tiger.

In 1940 Mr. Reed, the man who nominated Champ Clark of Missouri for the presidency nearly 30 years earlier, came out for Mr. Willkie for president, saying he was "a better Democrat than Mr. Roosevelt".

Mr. Roosevelt, in an early press conference after his nomination at Chicago in 1940, took cognizance of this with a remark "we all remember that sweatshop matter, of course," a reference to an NLRB case against the Donnelly Garment Co. of Kansas City, of which Mrs. Reed, once Nell Donnelly, was president and treasurer, and Mr. Reed the counsel. Mr. Reed married Mrs. Donnelly, whose release from a kidnaper he had negotiated, in 1933, a year after the first Mrs. Reed died.

Born on a farm near Mansfield, O., Mr. Reed moved with his parents to Cedar Rapids, Ia., when he was 3 years old. He was graduated in law from Coe college and, after three years practice at Cedar Rapids, came to Kansas City in 1887 to make his career. Thirteen years later he was elected mayor after a memorable career as country prosecuting attorney.

'DEAD' MEN REVIVED BY SOVIET SCIENTIST

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — A Soviet scientist has succeeded in reviving apparently dead soldiers through a combination of blood transfusion and artificial respiration, the information bulletin of the Soviet embassy said Friday.

Dr. Vladimir Negovsky has accomplished this in 12 cases, the bulletin said.

In one case detailed, it said the soldier's attending physician certified that breathing and heart action had stopped and that other unmistakeable signs of death had appeared.

Dr. Negovsky's method is described as simple, worked out in eight years of experimentation beginning with dogs, and passing successfully to new-born babies who had died of asphyxiation.

It appears to arrest the gradual process of death before it becomes complete and must be used within a few minutes after what is ordinarily considered death takes place.

Hits At Draft Dodgers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — The senate approved legislation revoking the citizenship of anyone who fled the United States to doge the military draft and excluding from readmission at any time in the future any alien who pursued such a course. The bill went back to the house for acceptance of a technical amendment.

DECEASED TROOP BALLOTS VOIDED

Herbert Also Rules On Vote For War 'Objectors'

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9—Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert held Friday that ballots of deceased soldiers could not be counted and that conscientious objectors could not vote an absent war voters' ballot unless they are attached to the armed forces.

The opinion, interpreting the soldier ballot legislation enacted by the legislature last April, was given to Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel.

The attorney general said that the soldier ballot act was a part of the Ohio general election laws, which prohibit the counting of ballots of the deceased.

The secretary of state also had inquired what proof of death an election judge should require.

Mr. Herbert replied he could not give a legal opinion on this subject, but it seemed to him that an official notification from the war or navy department or the notification of a close relative should be sufficient.

As for the conscientious objectors, he said they cannot vote the absent war voters' ballot unless they are serving in the armed forces or are members of certain organizations attached to and serving with the armed forces.

These organizations, as listed in the law, are the Red Cross, Society of Friends, Women's Auxiliary Service Pilots and United Service Organizations.

ROOSEVELT HAILS CIO FOR ITS VICTORY ROLE

By The Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 9—President Roosevelt told CIO unions Friday that "their loyal and unremitting effort and that of their fellow workers throughout the nation" has made victory possible.

In a message to Louis Hollander, president of the New York State Industrial Union council, read at its convention, the President said:

"The job which the million members of your organization have done as soldiers on the production line has earned and won the gratitude of all Americans.

"Their loyal and unremitting effort and that of their fellow workers throughout the nation has made possible the great victory our armed forces are winning today in this war of liberation.

"I know that they will not relax their effort until the enemy has been crushed finally and the earth cleansed of Naziism, Japanese imperialism and all their evils."

FRANCE-SEIZED NAZIS TAKEN TO CAMP PERRY

By The Associated Press.

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 9 — "Several hundred" additional German prisoners of war, ranging in age from 16 to 40, have reached Camp Perry, wearing combat uniforms which they were seized during the Allied liberation of France.

The camp's public relations office said the prisoners will be available through war manpower regulations for agricultural labor projects within a 50-mile radius of Camp Perry.

The group included no officers. The trip from an eastern port was made aboard a prisoner of war train.

The War Today:

Major Action Brews In West Pacific Zone

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

THERE are many signs that important developments are impending in the war on Japan and we shall be smart, it strikes me, if we take a quick look at the situation in the western Pacific lest we get caught by surprise. First, London is convinced President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet again in the immediate future — probably at Quebec. They not only will plan for peace, but get set to unleash the entire Allied striking power against Japan the instant Hitler has been knocked out. Here enters Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters to give us a possible date for the fuehrer's crack-up. They say the end for Germany may come by early November.

Mr. Mackenzie

Coincident with this, American bombers have made another heavy assault on Palau, the Nipponese naval and air base known as "the Japanese Singapore".

Observers, piecing this into the Oriental jigsaw, think it presages big events which will unlock the gateway for a direct assault on the Philippines.

PALAU, which can accommodate a great naval fleet, lies only 550 miles east of Mindanao island in the southern Philippines. Before an attack can be made on Mindanao by Gen. MacArthur, Palau must be rendered impotent.

There's one other obstacle still in Gen. MacArthur's way, the island of Halmahera, which is said to be strongly held, but it has air fields which Gen. MacArthur needs, not only for his own security but for operations against the Nipponese on Mindanao.

Once Halmahera and Palau are disposed of Gen. MacArthur can move swiftly against the Philippines, recapture of which is about the biggest single step we could take at this stage in smashing Japan.

These great islands lie right across the sea communications between Nippon and all the wealth of the Indies which she now holds. Without the oil, the rubber and the other essentials which she obtains from these conquests, her war machine must collapse.

THE Mikado and his little men are quite aware of the fate which is in store for them. The emperor himself has appeared before his diet and has warned his people of the gravity of their position.

Premier Koiso at the same time called on the population for a total war effort in which he described as a life-or-death struggle.

From Japanese-occupied Shanghai comes a broadcast saying Tokyo expects naval landings soon in Philippine bays. The bombing operations by Gen. MacArthur are termed the "calm before the storm". Undoubtedly that's true. The western Pacific is a good spot to watch.

BILL IN SENATE HOLDS FUNDS FOR OHIO ROADS

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9 — State Highway Director H. G. Sours says Ohio will receive $27,938,000 in federal aid for each of three years followng the war to construct highway projects if a bill now pending in the senate is passed. Of this, more than $12,000,000 a year would be earmarked for expenditures in urban areas alone.

Mr. Sours returned from Washington, where, as a member of the legislative committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials, he urged speedy passage of the Hayden bill, which would grant $650,000,000 in federal aid to the states for such projects.

He said Ohio also would benefit greatly by such a program going into effect in other states, since it is the No. 1 state in the production of construction machinery.

NAZIS CLAIM ROUTING OF POLES IN WARSAW

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 9—The German radio asserted Friday that Gen. Bor's underground Polish army inside Warsaw has been smashed completely, a few hours after Gen. Bor himself said the Nazis were evacuating the Praga defense lines east of the capital.

Berlin said the "insurgents" laid down their arms.

A later communique from Gen. Bor, distributed by the Polish telegraph agency, said: "The situation is very serious. After occupation of the old town, the Germans have been carrying out systematic destruction of the center of the capital. They speedily are dominating the area on the Vistula. The food situation is becoming worse. There are no electric lights in the city and the water supply is cut off."

Dawn For England

BRITAIN'S blackout will be lifted beginning Sept. 17, the sign for millions of Britons of the official end of the civilian war they fought for five years. Victory, costly as it has been, is sweetened by the fact that German civilians suffered the same agonies, but without victory at the end.

This is dawn for England in a war whose black nights were the symbol of its frightfulness. The Germans dreamed of breaking British morale with air raids, just as they dreamed of doing it in World War I. Twice in this generation they were frustrated by British refusal to go to pieces under stress. Grim justice has put them to the same test.

It is problematic what militarists will decide about war on civilians when all the evidence in World War II has been assimilated. It did not prove decisive, but that may be traceable to the limitations of the weapons used, rather than to any fault in theory. As the lights go on again in England, many will wonder whether the next blackout, if it comes, may not be the final one.

Japanese Buck Fever

JAPAN'S Premier Koiso and, within the limits of royal restraint, Emperor Hirohito himself are showing some of the symptoms of buck fever. Koiso says the war has reached a decisive stage for the Japanese and admits that Germany is having trouble with victory. The situation is so serious that Japan is about to be totally mobilized.

Koiso must have been reading the wrong communiques. As every German knows, the German army has been falling back to shorten its lines and turn the tide of the war at the West Wall. It is staging a strategic retreat to draw the enemy out of position.

As every Japanese, except those at the top, knows, the United States is in no condition to do any considerable damage, because it has been hammered to pieces from the air, blasted from both oceans and invaded by hordes of determined German and Japanese soldiers. There is nothing to worry about, and the Japanese should rebuke Koiso for trying to scare them.

Physical occupation of Germany and Japan will be necessary to bring World War II to a conclusion, because there is no other conceivable way to tell Germans and Japanese what their leaders alone can find out—that they did not win it.

To The Last Wall

GERMANY'S famed West Wall probably has more political than military value at this stage in the Allied offensive. German militarists realize what politicians dare not admit—that as a military problem the assault on their last line of fortifications can be solved by the same genius which made possible for the Allies to invade Normandy, break out of the beachhead and race across France to the Rhine.

The Allies have everything they need for completion of their drive to penetrate Germany. They have air power and air-borne troops to land behind the West Wall. They have naval power to flank it on the North sea extremity. They have ample reserves of manpower and material to bring tremendous pressure to bear at any point they wish to designate.

In German military practice, static defense never has been given the importance it reached in France, for example, which believed its Maginot line would be an insuperable obstacle. The West Wall, both in the part that faced the Maginot line and in the extensions northward behind Belgium and the Netherlands, was designed as protection in the west against eventualities while German armies were occupied with an offensive in the east.

Germans will be told much about it in the next few days by politicians. But in America, the families of the men who shortly will show up on the other side of the West Wall may rest assured that Gen. Eisenhower and his staff have not come up to Germany's last wall without a plan of attack at least as good as that which routed the Germans in France.

The Tourists Come Home

THE battle of France has been decided. Except for the German military technique of sacrificing troops, it would be over. Militarily, the German position in all of western Europe from northern Denmark to the beleaguered positions in Italy is untenable. Allied penetration of Belgium is a threat to outflank German forces in the Low Countries. The Allied drive north from the Mediterranean pockets the Germans in southwestern France. Their position is hopeless.

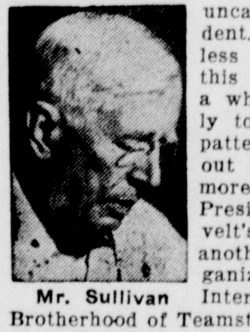
The tourists must come home. Whatever remains of the war on the western front now must be reorganized on German soil. The decision will be made in the valley of the Rhine. It is still to be seen how well Germans can fight in defense of their homeland, or if they have salvaged enough from their debacle in the west to fight at all. But it would be absurd to underestimate the advantage of their position.

Fighting in Germany, they would be free for the first time in the war of the handicap of an unfriendly civilian population. In their fortifications—constructed with the utmost care over many years for exactly this contingency—they would have the benefit of the toughest obstacles it is possible to devise to stop an offensive.

A Pattern

Democrats' Concentrated Appeal For Labor Vote Termed Unprecedented In U.S. Political History

By MARK SULLIVAN



Mr. Sullivan

WASHINGTON — Choice of Labor day as the time, and of labor organizations as sponsors and audiences, for Vice-presidential Candidate Truman's first campaign speeches, may have been an uncalculated incident. Nevertheless it is a sign this campaign as a whole is likely to take. The pattern is borne out and made more definite by President Roosevelt's choice of another labor organization, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, as sponsor and audience for his first "political" speech of the campaign, Sept. 23. Partly this emphasis on appeal to organized labor is voluntary choice on the part of the candidate. Partly it is a consequence of conditions growing up over the 12 years of the New Deal, and coming to a climax in Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy for a fourth term. This concentration of appeal to a special class of voters is unprecedented in American political history. In past campaigns, both parties have made appeals to labr as incidents of the campaign, along with appeals to farmers and other groups. It will be the same this year with the Republicans. But with the Democratic candidates, appeals to labor comprise the main concentration of the campaign.

From this flows another aspect of the campaign. One group of organized labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, is the object of special appeal by Mr. Roosevelt, has been associated particularly with his administration and is extremely active in support of him.

THIS in contrast with other labor organizations, the American Federation of Labor and the railroad brotherhoods, which have followed their long-standing rule of not indorsing any presidential candidate, and which in fact are by no means as strong for Mr. Roosevelt as is the C. I. O.

From this special relation between the C. I. O. and Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy, arises an effect on other groups of voters. It is illustrated by a remarkable poll of Minnesota, taken by the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune.

The question asked was: "If the CIO supported a candidate, would you be more likely to vote for that candidate, or against him?"

To that question, 50 percent of the persons polled answered "against him," only 8 percent "for him;" 27 percent said it would make no difference, and 15 percent said they were undecided.

While this Minnesota poll covered all groups of voters, it is a fact that the state contains a large number of farmers, and likely that the poll reflects the attitude of this group of voters everywhere.

In any event, it is accepted generally that the farm sections of the country are rather strongly against Mr. Roosevelt in this campaign.

The Gallup nation-wide poll shows a decline of farm support for Mr. Roosevelt from 59 percent in the actual election of 1936 and 54 percent in 1940 down to 45 percent as measured by the present poll.

In some farm states the decline is from above 60 percent in 1936 to below 40 percent this year. The entire 11 states comprising the farm territory of the midwest are listed tentatively as Republican by the Gallup poll, and also a border state, Missouri, the home state of Mr. Truman, which has a large farm population.

It would be rare to find so violent a change by farmers, or any other considerable group of voters, in so short a period of time.

IT is commonly said that the CIO is both an asset to Mr. Roosevelt and a liability to him. The CIO's activity in the campaign has been disapproved strongly by spokesmen of the other great labor organizations, the AFL and the railroad brotherhoods.

At the same time, considerable numbers of members of these organizations, and some local branches of the AFL, however they may feel about the CIO as a labor organization, nevertheless go along with it in support of Mr. Roosevelt.

In one respect the CIO is a valuable asset to Mr. Roosevelt—its work in getting voters to register and vote. In state after state, polls show a margin of 1 or 2 percent one way or the other.

In Gallup polls, such large tsates as New York are assigned tentatively to Mr. Dewey by 52 percent of the total vote, New Jersey by 51 percent. Such large states as Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are assigned to Mr. Roosevelt by 52 percent.

This margin of 1 or 2 percent is just the margin that often decides an election by registering and going to the polls, or negletcing to do so. And this margin might be swung to Mr. Roosevelt by the CIO's extraordinary energy and thoroughness in getting voters to register and vote.

Labor's Strides

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — One hundred thirty-eight years ago, striking shoemakers in Philadelphia were prosecuted criminally for a combination to raise wages.

A few weeks ago a combination of unions (AFL and CIO) was influential enough reputedly to squelch a vice presidential possibility (James F. Byrnes) because he did not share their view on wages and certain social issues.

Such has been the progress of organized labor in the United States. In that interval, organized labor has had an exciting history of political ups and downs, but never before has it approached the national influence it wields today.

Labor's experiments with an independent political party on the whole have been failures. Successes have been only local and temporary.

The most notable, perhaps, was the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota. The party elected several governors, senators and representatives, but its power has waned.

A more recent example of independent political action was New York's American Labor party. Its fiber was labor unions, but like so many earlier attempts, it was torn by internal dissention and conflicting philosophies.

Labor made its great national bid outside the two major parties in 1924. That was the year of the unsuccessful LaFollette - Wheeler ticket. The American Federation of Labor never since has indorsed a political party as such.

Even the CIO Political Action Committee, while indorsing a ticket for national offices, maintains it is non-partisan.

History shows that when a labor party did gain a foothold the old party politician turned up as the "friend of labor" and made one or more of the labor party's planks his own.

Labor made a successful effort in 1936 through Labor's non-partisan league.

That year was notable for an acknowledged contribution of $500,000 by the United Mine Workers to the candidacy of President Roosevelt.

Historically, the major story of the 1944 Democratic national convention perhaps was labor's influence.

The AFL and the CIO diluted each other's strength to some extent. Had they been united, they might have named the vice presidential nominee.

Labor's real test, competent observers believe, will be the congressional elections. Meantime, the CIO PAC already is credited publicly with more successes than it is willing to claim. Whatever the future holds, there is little doubt that the political chiefs today are bending an ear to labor.

The Chamber Referendum

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE Chamber of Commerce of the United States is a curious organization of businessmen, who, when Herbert Hoover was president, as he has told me on several occasions, proposed to him a distinctly fascistic reorganization of American economics, which he regarded as unconstitutional and un-American and rejected as such.

It eventually reappeared as the NRA, the closest imitation of Mussolini's economics ever tried outside Italy. It may be pointed out that the proposal to President Hoover was not by the Chamber itself but by a group within it, which is much the same thing only covered up.

This same Chamber of Commerce of the United States now is taking a referendum on social security and although this column will appear after the votes are in, it is of value to consider the theories of the committee supporting the proposition that:

"Protection should be provided against the periods of job and income losses that are a natural consequence of the workings of a free and changing society."

What society is not changing? Where and when has there been a static society? What is meant by the "natural consequence" of a free and changing society? Well, the authors of this proposition try to explain themselves and wander right plumb into a totalitarian philosophy.

No matter how they twist and turn, they come into a government control of the economy and the social conditions of the country. They are back to the ideas that sent some of them to Mr. Hoover to ape Benito the Duce.

FOR mind you what they say: "A free competitive enterprise economy is to some extent a changing economy under which wage and income losses are inevitable. These losses are due in large part to the very fact that in a free society the individual, as well as the business firm, is free to spend income and make investments at will. Decisions not to spend or invest mean job losses. Job and wage losses are, therefore, to some extent inherent in a free society. . . ."

But a free and changing economy also makes jobs. Men stop making wagons and they or other men make automobiles. They stop making ice boxes and they make electrical refrigerators.

"Machines make jobs" used to be the slogan of those businessmen who comprise the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

What defeatism compels them now to believe that there is no intelligence, no imagination, no inventiveness in American industry; that only the government can save American business and the American worker from unemployment?

Do these men actually believe that the enslavement of dependency on government is the sole solution of our social and political problems? If so, Earl Browder has been right and the arguments of the Chamber of Commerce these two decades lies and a fraud.

Further, the argument states: "A regimented society possibly could abolish or reduce these insecurities, but only if the freedoms also were abolished."

BUT what this report proposes is a regimented society, because if the government guarantees an income to every citizen to prevent him from suffering from the "natural consequence" of a free and changing society, the government rightfully should destroy freedom "to spend income and make investments at will."

If the government is to guarantee subsistence from the cradle to the grave, it must blueprint the entire economic system to safeguard all forms of what is by many today called wasteful competition.

In a capitalistic society there can be no wasteful competition. Capitalism rejects the concept that any business requires protection from competition. It demands freedom for a new and better product or method or organization to kill off the obsolescent and inefficient and stupid.

The manufacturer who insisted on making whips after the automobile appeared took his chances on being wiped out and those who continued to work for him instead of chasing out to Detroit to get in on the ground floor for a new industry deserved what happened to them — whatever it was.

It is not a question of the rights or wrongs of social security. I am attacking here the philosophy of dependence on government which these folks advocate without apparently understanding what they are doing.

Going! Going! Guam!

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Both Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill are agreed that there have been few stranger political footballs than the controversy over who was responsible for failure to fortify Guam.

Since we entered World War II, I am sure there have been more than 20,000 words of speeches on the floor of congress and articles written into the Congressional Record defending congress' stand on the matter.

The senate navy affairs committee chairman Sen. Walsh, even had a complete investigation and report made on the matter.

The controversy almost had died down, however, when the recent recapture of Guam and President Roosevelt's statement in his Bremerton (Wash.) speech that "we were not allowed to fortify Guam" brought it back into the political picture.

The record is clear and has been printed, but as is sometimes the case, the black and white record doesn't tell all the stroy by any means.

Facts on the record and off are simply these:

In 1938, Rear Adm. A. J. Hepburn, heading a committee set up by congress to make recommendations on improving the navy, suggested that $80,000,000 be appropriated to establish a seaplane and submarine base at Guam.

No appropriation bill ever came before congress with this item in it, but in 1939, the navy budget did include $5,000,000 for dredging and improving the Guam harbor.

That year, four Democrats, all World War I veterans, led a fight against the measure on the floor of the house and a coalition of 64 Democrats and 168 Republicans defeated the item. The senate made no effort to put it back in the bill.

Two years later, and 10 months before Pearl Harbor, congress did appropriate $4,700,000 for harbor improvements on Guam.

Now off the record: The navy didn't ask the full appropriation for fortifications and new bases as outlined in the Hepburn report because it knew very well it never would get it.

Adm. William Leahy (now President Roosevelt's chief of staff), in hearings on the 1939 bill, was forced to declare 13 times in almost as many minutes that "we are not asking authority to fortify Guam".

The necessity for that many denials of intent shows clearly what the attitude of at least some members of the committee was.

And most important of all, it wouldn't have made any difference anyway.

To carry out Adm. Hepburn's recommendations would have taken a good more many years than there were between 1939 and Pearl Harbor and even then, military experts here say, Guam would have provided no more than a delaying action of minor consequence.

Even the Hepburn report asked for nothing more than a submarine and seaplane base and recommended nothing like the defensive fortifications of a Corregidor or Pearl Harbor.

A good many members of congress would be happy to see this little political bean bag laid away in a museum of unnatural history for all time.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Pvt. Purkey Nears The Reich

DEAR Harriet:

Well, I am not sure where I am now on account of the armies in France don't stop long enough to look at the signposts, but if I ain't in Germany I am close. Uncle Sam has got a new secret weapon. It is a jet-propelled G. I. We are moving so fast, Harriet, that windshields should now be compulserry equipment for foot soldiers.

I would not be able to write this letter except we have just slowed down to thirty miles a hour. I don't know what we slowed down for but Sergent Mooney says it as on account of we had to send some scouts about 100 miles to locate Gen. Patton.

It has been almost like a sightseeing tour with me the last few weeks and I seen a thousand places where Hitler once slep and most towns where the Nazi supermen once stood. It looks to me like the Kraut is the fastest folding soldier in history. He is a great fighter when he has height, weight and reach on the other fellow, but he has got a backbone like a accordion.

I seen thousands of captured Nazis in the last couple of weeks and I ain't seen a goosestep in a carload. Anybody who says Germany will never surrender on our terms is nuts. The ones I been seeing will surrender for a drink of water and a cool place to lay down and catch their breath.

You can make them sore by not accepting a surrender and I seen some so nervous about it that they wanted it in writing. We have plenty of Nazi generals and they all look like they did not like army life no more. I bet even them generals who Hitler hanged a month ago don't look no worse.

One rumor is that the Germans are retreating so fast because they want to get back inside Germany and lay their hands on Hitler who told them the British were pushovers, that the Yanks was just a bunch of softies and that all the super race had to overcome was Churchill's cigar. They wouldn't of minded so much if he hadn't said positively.

Honest, Harriet, the Krauts are moving so fast they must have a tail wind. What a turn things has took. Six months ago if I gained a mile it was pretty good. Now I get charged with insubordination if the general finds me in the morning closer than sixty miles to where I was the night before.

Sergent Mooney balled me out yesterday for being in the same French province two hours at a stretch and said he could have me shot for practically running away in the face of fire. He called for volunteers today for men to cross two rivers at a jump.

This liberation business is nice but it is too fast for comfort. I would rather of liberated a little slower so we could get time to buy at least a postcard in some of them famous French and Belgium places. But if a G.I. stops to tie his shoe here he becomes AWOL.

The way it is going I think I should be in Berlin by next week end. Maybe I can get home for the world series, but I cannot promise.

All my love,
OSCAR.

P.S.—Verdun was a awful dissappointment. There was no fighting and nothing stopped us except a sign like outside movie houses. It just said: "There will be a short wait."

Freed!

Vacation days are over,
And homeward through the mists
Flee our own "liberated"—
The frayed vacationists.

One of Germany's generals in France is a former beer hall bouncer. But this is the first time he ever saw so many men coming up the stairs at the same time.

Fashion Report

By Truman Twill

NOW that Paris has been turned back to Frenchmen, our fashion experts hardy can wait to see what the women over there have been wearing and whether they have anything cute in mind for this winter.

The Paris designers, we are assured, soon will be doing business at the same old stand in the same old way—draping a skirt here and there and pinning on a bow in a better place there . . . no, not there, baby, THERE.

We got along without fashion, but it was tough. Men wore their wartime getups by government edict. They cut the cuffs off their pants, had them sewed back on, gave the second pair of pants, accepted patch pockets and the absence of pleats, depending on what some dyspeptic character in Washington ate for breakfast.

For the women it was worse, because they had to struggle along without so much as an authentic copy of a model copied from an authentic copy of a Paris model. It was almost as bad as living in the dark ages and wearing homespun. The women made the supreme sacrifice.

A lot of them took to wearing slacks in desperation, because they learned that after a pair of slacks get broken in, no one expects them to look like anything. The bags in the knees and the ballooonage in the seat are what the Parisians call "comme il faut".

The garment that saved the day, though, was a burlap sack made out of wool yarn. This was put on over the head and permitted to fall as far as gravity would take it. If it fell far enough, it was a dress, but in the event of a shortage it was called a sweater.

If it was raining, our ladies made a big thing of old pieces of dress goods fished out of the rummage basket and cut into squares. This was a triumph of Yankee ingenuity copied from National Geographic photographs of Ellis Island in the old days. They put these things over their heads and tied them under their chins, also very "comme il faut".

Skirts, of course, were marvels of simplicity, as they always are in wartime, being merely pieces of yard goods cut to go around the wearer's middle and permitted to fall where they would, which usually was not very far. This had one big drawback—it whooped the consumption of soap to keep the ladies' knees clean and necessitated the intensive promotion of fat salvage, not all of which was in connection with kitchen fat, either. It was pretty rugged, but now that Paris is back in business, things will get better. The fashion designers will be out with Paris models as soon as they can get some to copy.

During World War I the Germans bombarded Paris from a distance of 76 miles with specially-built long-range guns, throwing 265-pound shells.

Will head for home when veterans do;
The war department knows the score,

Noteworthy Events In District Churches—

Churches Will Resume Fall Schedules Tomorrow

Most Of Ministers Are Back From Vacations

The regular schedule of Sunday services in many churches of the East Liverpool district, which was abbreviated for the summer season, will be resumed tomorrow.

A majority of the ministers who took their vacations during August returned to their pulpits last Sunday but the summer arrangement of services was continued over Labor Sunday.

Some of the churches abandoned Sunday night worship services during the summer or joined with neighboring churches in union meetings. Many of these congregations will hold their regular Sunday night worship services starting tomorrow.

Will Resume Series

Rev. C. W. Cooper, D.D., will resume his series of "Sidewalk" sermons at the night service in the First Methodist church. He will speak on the subject "My Town" tomorrow. Organ numbers of Miss Jean Cowles will include "Meditation" (Sturges), and "Evening" (Martin).

Rev. Cooper will speak on "Sons of the Kingdom" tomorrow morning. Miss Louise Rose, soprano, will sing "They That Wait Upon the Lord" (Ward-Stephens). The organ selections will be "Triumphal March" (Verdi), and "Berceuse" from "Joselyn" (Goddard).

A song fest, directed by Miss Cowles, will feature the meeting of the Youth Fellowship at 6:30 p. m. Rev. Cooper will speak on the subject "Toward the Goal Posts".

In the inaugural Sunday night service of the fall in the First United Presbyterian church, Rev. Clyde H. Canfield, D.D., the pastor, will preach on "What is a Sermon Preaching?"

Choir Will Be Heard

The choir will sing "Seek Ye the Lord" (Roberts). Organ selections of Miss Adda McLane, organist, will be "Andante" (Rogers), for the prelude, and "Prayer" (Dunham), for the offertory.

The choir, under the direction of F. R. Martell, will sing two anthems, "He that Dwelleth (Poteat), and "A Morning Prayer" (Sibelius), at the morning service, and Miss McLane will play "Before a Shrine" (DeKoven), for the prelude, and "Intermezzo" (Dunham), for the offertory. Rev. Canfield will preach on "I am Not Alone".

The first meeting of the fall of the church council of about 100 leaders will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. A program of activities for the fall season will be outlined.

Rev. W. E. Bridge of Canton will be the guest speaker at both the morning and night services in the First Baptist church, of which Rev. C. Alex Jones is the pastor. Holy Communion will be celebrated at the 10:30 a. m. service with Rev. Bridge giving a Communion meditation.

In the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Arthur E. French Jr., acting pastor, will preach tomorrow night on "Belief in God". Miss Marian Pittenger will be substitute organist in place of Mrs. J. F. Calhoun, who is on vacation. She will play "Elizabeth's Prayer" (Wagner), for the prelude, and "Festival March" (Kroeger), for the postlude. The choir will sing "Sanctus" (Moir).

"The Saints in East Liverpool" will be the sermon subject of Rev. French for the morning service. The choir will sing an anthem "Unto the Hills" (Purday). Organ numbers will consist of "Ave Maria" (Schubert), for the prelude, "Hear My Prayer, O God" (Kopyloff), for the gradual, and "Maestoso" (Tielman), for the postlude.

Morning and night services will be held in the Orchard Grove Community Methodist church, with Rev. Robert Tarr, the pastor, occupying the pulpit.

He will preach in the morning on "Force or Persuasion in Spiritual Progress". Miss Jacqueline Garwood, a member of the intermediate group, will sing "Sunrise" (Ackley), at this service. Mrs. Donald Ogilvie will be at the organ. The night sermon topic will be "Blocked Prayers".

Wellsville Nazarenes To Burn Mortgage At Ceremony On Sept. 17

Members of the Wellsville Church of the Nazarene will burn the mortgage on the church property at a service arranged for Sunday afternoon, Sept. 17.

The mortgage-burning ceremony will be preceded by a series of special services which will be conducted by Rev. O. L. Benedum of East Liverpool, Akron district superintendent, beginning next Thursday night.

Rev. T. Homer Smith, pastor of the Rogers Methodist church, will be speaker at the service tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Instrumental music will be furnished by the Thompson family. Vocal numbers will be given by Mark, Myron and Theron Smith, sons of Rev. and Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Edith Mackey Smith, children's worker at the Hollow Rock camp meeting this summer, will be the speaker at the service of the Nazarene Young People's society at 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Pauline Wilson will be the soloist at the 11 a. m. service at which Rev. Clark Allison, the pastor, will preach. The Gibson sisters, Mina and Charlotte, will sing at the meeting of the Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.

Sermon by Rev. Hinerman

DR. PAUL L. CARTER
Superintendent of the Steubenville District,
REV. PHILIP HINERMAN, Minister

YES, SIR, IT IS A FACT—

That every case of conversion recorded in the New Testament is the case of a person or persons who discovered that they were wrong in their religion and made it right with God by obeying His word!

The Ethiopian officer was very religious, even to the extent of traveling hundreds of miles to worship, but he was not a Christian. His conversion is revealed in Acts chapter eight. It will do you good to read it. When an honest man finds out that he is wrong, he makes it right at his earliest opportunity.

Cornelius was a pious, prayerful and benevolent man, but he was not a saved man—he was not a Christian—until he learned what God wanted him to do, and then DID it. (Acts 11:14; 10:47, 48). He was so honest that when he discovered God wanted him to do differently in religion, he sent for an apostle, asked for the whole will of God—everything that was commanded—and promptly OBEYED THE GOSPEL! How about you?

Our souls are too precious and heaven is too sweet for us to risk a doubtful way or a half-hearted effort to go there. "Ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls" (Jer. 6:16). The church of Christ extends you a cordial welcome to come study the Bible, find the approved way of New Testament religion and enjoy the simplicity of primitive Christianity today. You will be surprised to find what a difference there is between genuine New Testament worship and the unscriptural ways of worship in denominationalism.

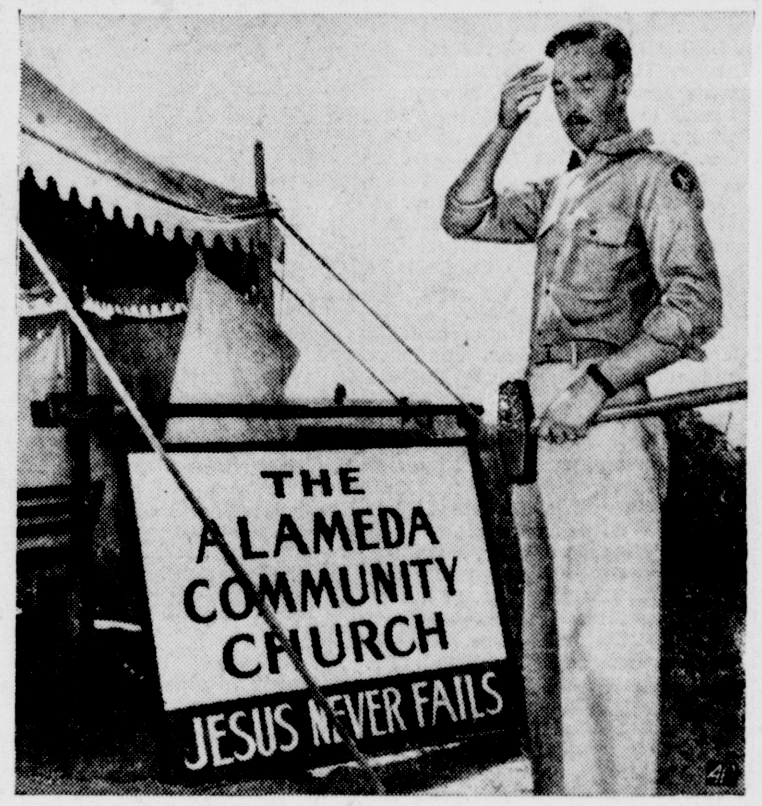
Soldier-Preacher Keeps Up His Sermons In The Service



SWEATING FOR THE LORD. Pvt. Willis Holmgren wipes his brow after driving home the last stake for his new tent church. "People at war for a just cause must believe in God," he preaches.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 8—Neither the war nor the army has kept Pvt. Willis Holmgren, a Norden bombsight mechanic at nearby Kirtland Field, out of the pulpit Sundays. Recently the slender, blond soldier of Swedish stock took a two-week furlough and spent it conducting an old-fashioned revival meeting in the Albuquerque suburban church which he serves as pastor during hours off from the army.

Pvt. Holmgren, 27, had studied for the ministry. When the war came he went to work in a shipyard.

"I volunteered for the army," he says, "because I believe it is as much the duty of a religious man to defend his country as anyone."

When Pvt. Holmgren took over as pastor of the strugglin,g church, the congregation numbered 15 or 20. It grew to almost 100. With his expanding flock, he decided to build a new canvas church. Boy Scouts and townspeople helped him cut weeds and swing sledges in erecting the nondenominational "Alameda Community church."

The soldier-preacher says he is waiting to be sent overseas for combat. After that, he says he wants to return to his congregation at Alameda.

FIRST PRESBYTERIANS TO DISCUSS PROGRAM

A planning conference for church leaders to discuss a program for the fall and winter season will be conducted Sunday, Sept. 17, in the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Arthur E. French Jr., acting minister, announced today.

The conference will be held in the afternoon. It will be concluded with the Sunday night service when Rev. S. Wilmer Beitler, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Wellsville, will be the guest speaker.

The every-member canvass will be made by parish leaders on Sunday, Sept. 24, in preparation for Worldwide Communion, which will be celebrated on Sunday, Oct. 1.

PASTOR PLANS SERIES ON 'APOSTLE'S CREED'

Rev. David Skeen, pastor of the Wellsville Central Methodist church, will give the first of two sermons on "The Apostle's Creed" at the unified worship hour Sunday morning which begins with Sunday school at 10.

He will inaugurate an expanded program for the Methodist Youth Fellowship at 6:30 p. m.

Rev. Skeen has just returned from taking a course at Asbury Theological seminary at Wilmore, Ky., and singing for two and a half weeks at revival services in Florida. Mrs. Skeen was studying music there.

SEMINARIAN TO SPEAK IN PLACE OF MINISTER

Donald W. Jolly, student in the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological seminary at Pittsburgh, will preach Sunday morning in the Second United Presbyterian church.

He will substitute for Rev. M. Todd Macdonald, the pastor, who is on his vacation.

Another student from the same school will preach in the First United Presbyterian church of Wellsville at 10:45 a. m. The church has been without a pastor since the death of Rev. J. A. Rankin, the pastor, about a month ago.

Weather Forecast

FORT GREELY, Alaska—In a recent issue of The Bear, the soldiers' Alaskan newspaper, is this terse comment on atmospheric conditions: "The weather — it's good to grind the Axis."

Rev. George A. Brown, pastor of the Calcutta United Presbyterian church, announced that he will preach Sunday at 11 a. m. on the subject "If Christ be in You". The gospel according to St. Matthew will be taken up by the Bible study class at its meeting at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. Alie O. Porter of Wheeling will be the visiting worker at services Sunday and Monday at 7:30 p. m. of the First Spiritualist church, which worships in The Review building.

The Pentecostal Assembly of Jesus Christ has taken over the former quarters of God's mission, located in the old Standard pottery building on upper Broadway. Mrs. Parsons will be in charge of the services, which will be held each Sunday and Wednesday at 8 p. m.

"Good Success" will be the subject for the sermon of Rev. E. G. Evans Sunday at 11 a. m. in the First Church of God. He will discuss "Galloping Diseases" at the evangelistic service Sunday night. Miss Dorothy Cline will be the leader of the young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m. Carl Varian will lead the mid-week prayer meeting next Wednesday night.

Rev. Thomas Schafer, East Liverpool minister who will leave soon to take up his studies at Duke university, will preach Sunday at 11 a. m. in the Second Presbyterian church in East End. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. Wilson M. Stitt in June.

Tatted For Seven Years

STATE ROAD, N. C.—Mrs. Dalla Thompson, a farmer's wife, has completed a tatted bedspread which took seven and a half years to make. Mrs. Thompson estimates she worked 30 hours a week on the spread, about 12,000 hours altogether. She used 75,000 yards of crochet thread.

MINNESOTAN TO HOLD FIRST BAPTIST SERIES

Rev. C. G. Lewis, artist, cartoonist and evangelist, of Minneapolis, Minn., will begin a series of special meetings next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the First Baptist church.

RIVAL LAWYERS CLASH AT SEDITION HEARINGS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — Two defense attorneys objected to the procedure of a third Friday at the trial of 26 defendants charged with a sedition conspiracy.

Charles E. Morganston, attorney for defendant August Klaprott, former national leader of the German-American bund, protested at the lengthy cross-questioning by Atty. Joseph H. Bilbrey of Mrs. Betty Lee McLaughlin, a government witness.

Mrs. McLaughlin had described Los Angeles bund meetings at which she said pro-Axis speeches were made.

Atty. Bilbrey, representing defendant Franzko Ferenz, questioned the witness at length about statements of Robert Noble, a former defendant, at these meetings.

"Noble," Atty. Morganston protested, "is no longer a defendant at this trial."

Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher overruled Atty. Morganston's objection and a similar one made by Maximilian St. George, consul for defendant Joseph E. McWilliams.

DEWEY ADVISES FAST ACTION ON SECURITY PLAN

G.O.P. Candidate Declares Handling Of Peace Must Be 'Non-Partisan'

governor indorsed the American plan for a post-war security organization, as submitted to the Dumbarton Oaks conference in Washington.

'Must Be Last Time'

"Twice within 25 years the American people have gone to war to defend their liberties from attacks that had their beginnings thousands of miles away," Gov. Dewey said.

"As a result we Americans are completely agreed on one proposition: We do not intend to have a third World War. This time must be the last time.

"We know that we cannot make good that resolve by any effort to withdraw or isolate ourselves from the rest of the world.

"Our problem is not how to stay out of a future war. Our problem is to prevent a future war before it happens, instead of getting into it after it had happened.

"Of course, that is easier said than done. Wars have had a habit of recurring regularly through all the centuries. But when war comes to us, it brings forth a United American effort.

It is a non-partisan matter. So also must we make peace a non-partisan matter, to be achieved through a united effort. Only through an non-partisan approach to the shaping of a peace structure can America achieve unity of purpose.

"Only with unity of purpose can America exercise the influence in the world for which its real strength has equipped it. I am deeply convinced that our peace efforts can and must become a non-partisan effort.

'Idea Already At Work'

"This idea is already at work. I have made a practical beginning with Secretary Hull in bipartisan cooperation to establish an international organization for peace and security.

"We cannot meet the problems of peace on any hush-hush, pussyfoot basis. The steps by which this great goal is to be approached cannot be secret. They must not be devious or obscure.

"On the contrary, they must be methods the American people will believe in. They must involve procedures and commitments that the American people will not merely accept for today, but wholeheartedly will support today, tomorrow and 50 years from today.

"For no document we sign at the end of this war will, of itself, preserve peace. Peace will be preserved only by the hard labor, the understanding and the willingness of all people during all the years to come.

"It will take sacrifice and continuing effort. It never will be something we can take for granted. We must wage peace, as we have waged war, by the united purpose of our people. That is why I have taken unprecedented action to promote the non-partisan character of the conferences now in progress.

Would Keep People Informed

"So long as I have anything to say about it I shall insist on two things. First that the American people shall be fully informed of our efforts to achieve and to keep the peace. Secondly, these matters never shall be subjects for partisan political advantage by any individual, or by any party either in or out of power.

"Tonight I want to discuss a few of the many aspects of the problem of preventing future wars.

"There are, at once two different things to be done. One deals with the immediate problems of victory and the other with the long-term worldwide problems of organized peace. Work on both should go ahead right now. But they are different problems entirely.

"Let us consider first the immediate problems of victory. I have long and repeatedly insisted that when the period of actual combat is over, we must continue close cooperation among the four great powers, the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China. The disarmament of Germany and Japan—a disarmament that must render them powerless to renew aggression—is primarily a responsibility of the victorious Allies. What must be done to carry out that responsibility?

Complete Disarmament Backed

"Germany and Japan must be completely disarmed. The weapons of aggression must be taken away from them, broken up, or destroyed. Beyond that, the very means of rearmament, the chance to make guns and fighting planes and warships, must be forbidden them.

"But we must remember that we are not worrying about another world war in the next five years or 10 years. All the great powers will be too exhausted and depleted to wage a great war then.

"Our task and our hope is to see that war does not come on us when war-like nations are again strong enough to wage it.

In the case of Germany, it probably will be necessary to establish a commission, which, in the first instance and for a number of years to come, must be responsible to the victors.

That commission must supervise the actual disarmament of Germany and the necessary measures to prevent rearmament. To prevent rearmament it will be necessary either to eliminate or to place under close supervision those industries which are readily convertible to war production.

Jap Role Discussed

"For some years to come, it may be necessary to forbid Germany any aviation industry of her own. I already have suggested the advisability of internationalizing the entire Ruhr which is the heart of Germany's heavy industry.

"Such a course would have its advantages not merely in removing from direct German national control the raw materials and the industry for new war productions. It also would permit this area to work for the economic rehabilitation of the entire continent of Europe.

"In the case of Japan similar measures adjusted to the particular characteristics of that island nation will be needed.

Here China, clearly, will have a definite and special interest. But the disarmament of the aggressor nations, the punishment of war criminals, the immediate post-war supervision of German and Japanese industry — all this is a responsibility of the victors and of such of the liberated countries as are willing and able to join in the endeavor.

"These are specific tasks which we can plan now and carry out according to agreements publicly made and publicly to be observed. This is the specific task of the great, victorious powers.

"The other task is the broader one. It is to establish a world organization in which all nations may share as sovereign equals, to deal with future threats to the peace of the world from whatever source, and on a permanent basis.

"So we must have a world organization equipped to meet the problems now unforeseen which may arise five and 10 or 50 years from now.

"That world organization must be the work of many minds. No one man or three or four men can shape it. Some 60 nations, great and small must help shape it, believe in it, join it, make it work.

"On certain aspects of the organization we are, I think, agreed. There will be a general assembly comprising all peace-loving nations of the world. In this general assembly all nations shall have representation.

"It generally is agreed, too, that there will be a council small enough for almost continuous meeting and prompt action. The major nations will participate in the council and the smaller ones through selected representatives.

"This world organization should develop effective cooperative means to prevent or repel military aggression, and such means should include the use of force as well as the mobilization of international opinion, of moral pressure and of economic sanctions. There should be a world court to deal with justifiable disputes.

"But even this is not enough. We should not seek merely repression of conflict. Force breeds revolt unless it is the servant of the law and the servant of justice. We should, and must, work to create conditions under which peace will be desired and not merely compelled."

Hillman Lashes Dewey On 'Double Talk'

By The Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 9—Sidney Hillman said today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, has engaged in "deliberate double talk" on international affairs and that his record on domestic affairs is "equally ambiguous".

The chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee and of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee delivered his criticism in a prepared address before the New York state CIO convention.

"Like the late Warren G. Harding, he (Dewey) has curried favor both with the isolationists and with the internationalists in his party," Mr. Hillman said.

The PAC leader said Gov. Dewey opposed lend-lease in January, 1941, but reversed himself a month later.

"In May, 1940, Gov. Dewey opposed additional aid to Britain," Mr. Hillman continued. "In 1944 he advocated a British alliance.

"In January, 1940, he bitterly attacked the administration for having recognized Russia, and said, 'We need no such partenerships'. By 1944 he had completely changed his mind—or at least so he said."

"His statements on domestic policies are even more vague and contradictory than those he has made on foreign affairs," Mr. Hillman added.

He said that Mr. Dewey, as governor, failed to credit the previous administration of Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman with leaving an $80,000,000 surplus, failed to pay adequate salaries to state civil service employes and to teachers and failed to provide adequate hospital service.

"It is not enough for us to repudiate at the polls the man who has made this record," Mr. Hillman asserted. "We must make this record known to the people of the United States—before they go to the polls—in every state in the union."

Bricker To Launch Campaign In Talk Tonight

By The Associated Press.

MITCHELL, Ind., Sept. 9—Gov. John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate for vice president, declared today that the people owe "an everlasting debt of gratitude" to most of the editors of America.

"The editors of America," the Ohio governor said in a prepared speech released by his office, "have performed a great and noble and patriotic service in keeping up the fight for our essential liberties as guaranteed in the bill of rights."

Gov. Bricker stopped here en route to French Lick, Ind., where tonight he formally will open his campaign in an address before the Indiana Republican Editorial association.

Opening his bid for Indiana's 13 electoral votes in behalf of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, Gov. Bricker told his Mitchell listeners that the editors of America know how seriously their liberties "have been threatened and abused and trammeled by an arrogant autocratic bureaucracy".

"Most of the editors of America," he asserted, "have been true to their trust and have spoken fearlessly to the people about these encroachments. The people of America owe them an everlasting debt of gratitude."

Gov. Bricker said the American people have three objectives and added that the Republican party will guarantee their achievement:

"First, they want to win complete victory over Germany and Japan and to bring our sons and daughters home as soon as possible. Second, they want to make sure that these young people and their children shall not be called on to fight another and even more devastating war. And third, they want to build a post-war America in which there will be jobs for everyone, a high standard of living and, above all, freedom and opportunity."

TWO NAMED BY KRUG AS TOP AIDS FOR WPB

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — J. A. Krug, acting chairman of the war production board, Friday designated A. H. Bunker and Hiland G. Batcheller as his top aids in what he called a streamlining of the agency to deal with reconversion.

Mr. Bunker becomes chief of staff, and Mr. Batcheller chief of operations.

Mr. Bunker had been deputy executive vice chairman. This position has been eliminated, as has the position of executive vice chairman formerly held by Charles E. Wilson.

Mr. Batcheler, formerly operations vice chairman of WPB, returned to the agency only recently from the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp. of which he is president.

Mr. Krug said he contemplates no further basic changes in the organization.

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT RETURNS TO BRUSSELS

By The United Press.

LONDON, Sept. 9—Premier Hubert Pierlot and his fellow members of the Belgian government returned to Brussels Friday after four years of exile, accompanied by Allied diplomats. Word reached here yesterday of their safe arrival.

(The Brussels radio, heard by the FCC, said that immediately on his arrival, Premier Pierlot said the government will start at once to restore normal Belgian life, to seek the freedom of King Leopold, and to prosecute the war.)

The Belgians were cheered heartily as they left their headquarters in Eaton Square. Premier Pierlot had difficulty in restraining his tears.

His plane had a Belgian flag painted on both sides. John A. Parris, United Press war correspondent accredited to the Belgian government in Brussels, accompanied the party.

SUGAR SUPPLIES HERE DWINDLING

Refinery Trouble, Increase In Canning Blamed

almost as it arrived.

Indicative of the increased canning, one market said sales of jars and canning supplies have more than tripled this season, and there is a plentitude of fruits, such as peaches and pears.

In Youngstown, it was reported that some fruit was being given away because no sugar could be obtained for canning.

At Columbus, Robert F. Boda, director of the office of price administration's central district, said no serious shortage has been noted as yet, but that he had reports from dealers that their inventories were low.

The principal cause of the shortages, Mr. Boda said, is in distribution and manpower shortages in refineries.

Every individual is entitled to a total of 25 pounds of sugar for canning purposes and the rush at this season helped bring on the shortage, OPA spokesmen said.

An Associated Press survey showed Alliance grocers had exhausted their sugar supplies. One retailer said he was informed by a Philadelphia refinery that orders for sugar had stacked up until it is three weeks behind in deliveries. Alliance housewives were reported buying syrup for canning purposes.

Scarcity Of Meats, Cigarets Termed Acute

After the pot roast Sunday, you might sit back and light up — if you are able to get the meat and cigaret.

Many meat dealers here presented empty trays Friday, continuation of a week-long scarcity of beef, pork, ham and lamb cuts.

And cigaret smokers were grabbing a pack here and there of brands one seldom hears of — with most of the popular smokes virtually unobtainable.

Dealers said the shortages are growing acute.

BIG PUSH

000,000 at the time of the armistice.

Thus, for the German command the biggest problem is to figure out a disposition of forces to meet Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies, which could strike anywhere along a front of more than 200 miles.

The First army, commanded by Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, plowed deep into the Ardennes forest, reaching Maissin, a village 25 miles west of the Luxembourg border. In that area only dense mine fields and spotted German units slowed the advance of the Americans.

One British column sped 20 miles east of Leuven (Louvain) to St. Trond, 20 miles northwest of fallen Liege. These British troops are only 10 miles from a junction with an American column which pounded up 10 miles north of Huy to the town of Faimes.

After seizing Liege, the Americans pushed on to the village of Romsee, three miles to the east.

VOTERS' REGISTRATION REPORTED SLOW HERE

Registrations for the Nov. 7 general election are moving slowly and not more than 100 applicants have been handled by the Columbiana county eletcion board's office here since the board began in earnest to qualify electors Thursday, Clerk Frank R. O'Hnalon said today.

A last-minute rush may develop before the deadline Oct. 9, he pointed out.

To be eligible to register, an elector must have been a resident of Ohio one year, of Columbiana county 30 days and of his precinct 28 days prior to the election, Mr. O'Hanlon pointed out.

Persons previously registered who have failed to vote in at least one election — general, primary or special — in the last two years have had their registration canceled and must reregister, he added.

OUTPUT OF BOMBERS HIT IN FORD DISPUTE

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 9 — Production of B-24 Liberators was resumed on a small scale at the Willow Run bomber plant today, but Ford Motor Co. officials predicted that full shifts made idle by two labor disputes Friday will not be in operation before Monday.

The first dispute Friday was precipitated by the transfer of 20 riveters to another department, where the company said they would have the same classification and rate of pay.

A short time later 2,000 riveters and crane operators walked out in protest to the transfer. A United Automobile Workers (CIO) official said the transfers were made without regard to seniority.

Contending the crane operators are essential to continued production, the company sent all 15,000 employes on the day shift home.

POLICE WILL RESUME CRUISING IN EAST END

Firemen Renovate Car For Service In First Ward

A city-owned police cruiser will patrol the East End for the first time in nearly three years after it and another worn city car were put back in running shape by firemen for less than $100, Safety-Service Director Vincent J. McGeehan said today.

The cruiser, a 1937 Ford, was overhauled and new headlights, tires and a battery installed. Repainted Monday, it will be ready for service by mid-week, Mr. McGeehan said. The other renovated auto, a 1937 Chevrolet, has been painted red and will be used by Fire Chief Charles Bryan.

Addition of a cruiser in the First ward will bring to four the number in service here. Others cruise the North Side, Pleasant Heights and downtown districts.

Lacking a cruiser, patrolmen on duty in the East End the last few years generally have used their own cars and bought their own gas and oil to cover the big beat, Police Chief Hugh J. McDermott said. An auto can cover every street in that area once an hour, the director said.

SCHOOLS

beginning of this term, would bring in approximately $38,000.

According to the action of the legislature, the extra funds shall be applied "toward the payment of salaries of teachers and other school employes for the school year 1944-45."

However, according to some members of the legislature, the schools are expected to spend the extra funds before the end of the year, which would make another appropriation necessary to continue the increases for the remainder of the term.

Meanwhile, the East Liverpool board of education at a meeting Monday night is expected to discuss the manner in which the wage increase will be distributed in East Liverpool. Supt. Essex at the last meeting of the board suggested that the finance committee consider the special appropriation's "relationship to finance of the local schools, if enacted." Adjustments in teacher's salaries are expected to be made retroactive to the beginning of the present term.

W. E. Roberts of Lisbon, superintendent of the county school system, said the grant will total $30,768 for village and rural schools.

In addition to this the schools of New Waterford and Salineville will receive a refund for back salaries of teachers paid by the boards of education of the schools of the township.

The total enrollment of the rural and village schools has not yet been completed. Supt. Roberts said the schools still are operating with a number of temporary teachers who would like to be released.

The schools need three one-room teachers, two third and fourth grade teachers, three grade principals, who would receive salaries ranging from $175 to $260 per month; three for departmental teaching in grade schools, and four vocal and instrumental instructors.

Substitutes are working in all of these vacancies, but it is hoped soon that they will be filled by teachers attracted by the increased salaries.

REVENUE OF $2,135 IS RECORD FOR COURT

City Receives $1,681 From Collections In August

Collections in East Liverpool's municipal court reached $2,135.95 during August, probably an all-time high in the court's history, Clerk Ralph A. McShane announced today.

The city received $1,681.65 as its share of the fees, while the state treasury received $214.65 on criminal cases instituted by the state highway patrol, and $239.65 was paid to the county.

Fines, costs and bond forfeitures from persons charged under criminal statutes and city ordinances netted $1,389.60, while $292.05 was received from costs in civil cases.

During the month there were 69 city criminal cases filed, 63 disposed of and seven left pending. Thirty-five state cases were filed, 22 disposed of and 20 left pending and 62 civil cases filed, 84 disposed of and 89 left pending.

of command existing in the Pacific and said that so long as that unity is retained "we'll beat the Jap."

When asked about the frequent reports of clashes between himself and Gen. Smith of the army over conduct of the campaigns against the Japanese, he said: "I knew someone would ask that question," and continued:

"As you all well know, one of the many prerogatives and responsibilities of a commanding officer operating under the principles of unity of command is the assignment and transfer of officers commanding subordinate elements in any operation.

"Unfortunately, circumstances forced me to exercise one of these prerogatives and I did relieve Gen. Ralph Smith.

"I am not given to passing the buck, but as you seek details concerning this incident, I remind you that Gen. Smith is an army officer and I must refer you to the war department."

BAZOOKA SHELL BLAST HURTS SIX BOYS BADLY

By The United Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Six boys played happily in the living room of the Bronx apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lennon Friday. Their plaything was a bazooka shell, a war souvenir given the Lennons by a soldier relative.

Suddenly the shell exploded, blowing two of the children into the backyard, wrecking the basement apartment and seriously injuring all six boys. Vincent Lennon, 11, one of those blown out of the room, lost both legs.

The explosion shook the six-story building, housing 72 families, and occupants fled into the street.

Hundreds crowded to the scene and many persons said they felt the concussion blocks away.

TOKYO REPORTS BASES HIT AGAIN

Celebes, Halmahera Areas Struck By U.S. Planes

By The Associated Press.

Hard new air stabs in Japan's vital Celebes and Halmahera fortresses below the invasion-menaced Philippines were reported today from Tokyo.

The enemy report said 60 big bombers, with fighter escort, hit Manado, in the northern Celebes, Thursday. On the same day, Liberators, Mitchells and P-38s unloaded on the Kua bay area of Halmahera, island stepping-stone between Allied forces on New Guinea and the Philippines.

Fit Allied Pattern

These raids, though unconfirmed, fit the pattern of ceaseless, ever-growing aerial warfare which Gen. MacArthur, Adm. Nimitz and the 20th (B-29) bomber command have launched against Japanese holdings from Manchuria to the Indies.

The air war has won definite advantages. Gen. MacArthur announced today that "our air force now dominates the southern Philippines". A 113-ton bombing attack on Mindanao, southernmost Philippine island, met no aerial opposition for the simple reason the Japanese have pulled their hoarded air force out of harm's way farther north.

See Halmahera Invasion

To the north, Adm. Nimitz' carrier planes poured devastation into installations for three days on Yap and Ulithi islands in the western Carolines.

They knocked out a radio cable station, ack-ack positions, storage dumps and buildings. Enemy reports said the action was large scale, with 300 planes thrown in against Yap. The action lasted through Sept. 5-7.

Axis broadcasters, who previously had forecast invasion of Mindanao, now spotlight Halmahera as next on Gen. MacArthur's list. In any event, Tokyo let its people know that Japan's southern empire—rich in war materials—is in a bad way.

STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 — Early stock market prices were slightly mixed today with numerous leaders unchanged.

Fractionally higher at a slow opening were Woolworth, Commercial Investment Trust, Republic Steel, Radio Corp. and Standard Oil (N. J.) Small declines were posted for Consolidated Edison, Atlantic Refining, U. S. Rubber preferred and General Electric.

Analysts of market trends noted the commerce department compilation estimating individual income payments in July aggregated $12.8 billion, 9 percent above the like 1943 month, but 5 percent under June of the current year. The recession from the preceding period was attributed to the usual drop in dividend and interest disbursements during that month.

ONE SUPER-FORT LOST IN JAP RAID

including new-fangled, twin-engined fighters.

The Japanese news agency Domei said that a single B-29 super-Fortress appeared over Anshan today in a follow-up attack on the city.

The same broadcast, heard by the federal communications commission, said "the latest checkup" showed six of the "more than 100" American super-bombers operating in yesterday's raid were "heavily damaged". The dispatch claimed three were shot down.

Results of the bombing were described officially as "good to excellent" by U. S. officials. The enemy antiaircraft fire was "meager to moderate, but inaccurate" and interception was weak.

Pilots of the new Japanese fighters had a hard time judging the speed of the American super-Fortresses, the U. S. communique said. One pulled up so sharply in trying for position for attack that it stalled. The guns of eight super-Fortresses in formation nailed him and the enemy disintegrated in a puff of smoke and debris.

Several American pilots said the new enemy fighter is "plenty" fast, but evidently not maneuverable enough to offer a real threat. They said the Japanese pilots are not eager for combat.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, new commander of the 20th bomber command who was in the lead plane of one of the bomber formations, said he saw 15 fighters over the target awaiting the super-Fortresses after their long daylight sweep across enemy-held north China, but "they didn't seem too good".

Gen. Le May said the anti-aircraft fire was poor and he counted "only about 12" shell bursts as his plane made its bomb run.

"It was very poor for what they are supposed to have there and compared with what I have been used to looking at," he said.

Gen. Le May is a veteran of bombing missions over Germany.

Staff Sgt. Arthur C. Dennec of Alliance, O., was left gunner on Gen. Le May's crew.

of a coal and industrial area that long has fed the Nazi war machine.

In this region lies the Schneider metallurgical works and plants with a capacity of 30,000 tons of steel annually. The area often was a bomber target.

West of the Saone river, the French kept up a steady pace toward Dijon and cleared the enemy from Beaune after two days of stiff fighting. Beaune lies 18 miles north of Chalon-sur-Saone on the route to Dijon.

Skirting the Swiss frontier in a northward push, the French troops seized the Jura mountain towns of Pierre-Fontaine and Maiche, the latter 25 miles south of the ancient gap at the foot of the Vosges mountains 30 miles from the German border.

The American Seventh army after being held up by bitter opposition at Besancon, picked up speed and again drove eastward to the vicinity of Roulans-le-Grand, 20 miles near Belfort.

Taking over more areas of the wide Doubs valley, American troops smashed to the Doubs river at several points and penetrated the Chaux forest.

Much farther southeast, where stranded elements of the German army are trying to keep Mt. Genevre pass open across the Italian border, the Allies moved in for a new assault on Briancon.

MIKE TURK BUYS OLD STANDARD POTTERY

Modern Office Structure To Be Erected After War

Purchase of the old Standard pottery building on upper Broadway by Mike Turk, Walnut st. automobile distributor, was announced today. The property was purchased from T. A. McNicol, representing the Cronin estate. The consideration was not made public.

Mr. Turk announced that the buildings will be razed at the end of the war and a modern business building will be erected on the site. For the time being, however, the structure will be occupied by its present tenants.

The property has a frontage of 276 feet on Broadway and extends through to the Horn Switch and Apple alley. The present building, a three-story brick, has not been used for manufacturing purposes for more than 20 years, having been abandoned soon after World War I, when the Cronin heirs, now operating a plant in Minerva, purchased the old Chelsea pottery in New Cumberland.

CITY BOARD RECEIVES NEW GASOLINE BOOKS

Mustard-Hued Stamps Wil Be Issued Next Week

Thousands of new A gasolin books, scheduled for distributio to East Liverpool motorists nex week, arrived at the ration board' office at the City hall today from the OPA regional distribution center in Cleveland.

Printed on mustard-colored paper, the stamp sheets have a background formed by the great seal of the United States that will make them virtually counterfeit-proof. Each contains 30 stamps, arranged vertically in sequence, instead of horizontally as in the old-type book that expires Sept. 21.

Space is provided for writing in the auto license number and state of registration, as in present B and C books. There are six stamps in each of five series—numbered A-13 through A-17.

The bulk of an estimated 7,000 renewal applications probably will have been received by the deadline late this afternoon, said Mrs. Bloomgren, ration board clerk. Over the week-end the books will be unpacked and arranged in groups of 50, ready for preparation and mailing next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights by 40 high school girls working under supervision of teachers and ration board officials.

Most motorists will receive the new books by Sept. 16 provided their applications were filed on time.

4 ARE HURT SLIGHTLY IN COLLISION OF CARS

Four persons suffered minor injuries in a head-on automobile collision Friday at 8:45 p. m. on route 30 near the Columbiana County Memorial park.

Suffering from lacerations and bruises, they were treated in City hospital. They were: Richard Nye, an airline pilot of Chicago, driver of one car; Miss Joan Whitmire, also of Chicago, his passenger, and John Metro of Stockdale, Pa., driver of the other car, and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Metro.

The state highway patrol said that Mr. Metro, driving south, pulled to the left side of the road when he saw "Men Working" sign and crashed into the Nye car, which was being driven north. Highway patrolmen said that the sign had evidently been placed in the road by pranksters as no road work was under way at the time.

NEWELL ELEVEN TAKES GRID WALLOPING, 50-0

Wells High Team Is Outclassed By Powerful Rochester Rams In Opener; Woznick Suffers Concussion

Wells High of Newell suffered one of its worst defeats in the history Friday night when the powerful Rochester Rams drubbed the out-weighed and under-manned West Virginians, 50-0, on the Rochester gridiron in their opening game of the season.

The setback was even more decisive than last year's when Phil Colella, the great Ram back, ran wild to lead his mates to a 45-to-6 triumph.

Rams Gain At Will

Last night's game was all Rochester after the first few minutes as the Rams, with players three-deep at every position, ripped through and turned the Newell ends almost at will. They rolled up 15 first downs to three for Coach John Robison's Big Green.

In losing, the Newells took a terrific battering from the big Ram forward wall. Fullback Pete Woznick was taken from the game early in the third period and later was examined by a physician who said the Newell senior had suffered a concussion. He'll be out of action for several weeks.

Don Railing, left half, suffered a broken nose early in the contest but played throughout the 60 minutes without knowing it. The remainder of the entire starting team also received considerable shaking up from the much larger Rochester gridders.

Newell Gets To Midfield

Newell penetrated Rochester territory only once. In the middle of the second period, Guard Norman Cox recovered a Ram fumble on the Newell 22. Line plays picked up two first downs to midfield, but Railing's pass was intercepted by Rall, reserve back, who scampered 45 yards for a touchdown.

Rochester gained almost at will and didn't punt once. Two touchdowns were racked up in the opening period, another pair in the second, three in the third, and with the third stringers on the field, the final six-pointer was registered in the fourth stanza.

Rall, besides his 45-yard gallop in the second quarter, skirted right end in the third for 50 yards for another tally. Roger, another reserve, scooted 36 yards for another score in the Ram touchdown parade.

POTTERS STAGE PRACTICE GAME

Training Rules 'Laid Down' For Gridders Friday

Coach A. Gerald Capezzuti called his East Liverpool High gridders to Patterson field this morning where the pre-season drills were climaxed with a practice game of regulation length.

This morning's session, played with the thought in the coach's mind to get a "line" on some prospective reserve material, got under way at 9:30.

Friday night in the high school auditorium the head mentor "laid down" the training rules for the boys who will wear the Blue and White on the barred field this season. The rules, explained in the presence of the parents of the players, were:

1.—Proper amount of rest and sleep. In bed by 11 p. m.

2.—Regular study hours (8:30 to 10) to maintain an eligibility ranking.

3.—No smoking nor drinking.

4.—Regular attendance at practice periods.

5.—No dating during the season.

Any violation of the above rules, the coach stressed, will bring dismissal from the squad, star or no star.

Other speakers on the short program last night which was preceded by the screening of the Potter-Wellsville Thanksgiving game of 1943, were Supt. M. W. Essex, Principal Ralph Betts, Assistant Coach Don Ogden, Faculty Manager Nate Lorah and Roy Thompson, member of athletic board.

Coach Capezzutti also introduced his freshman coach, Jim Proctor.

A luncheon was served in the gymnasium following the meeting.

Last Place Blues Hold Whip Hand In Torrid AA Playoff Contests

By The Associated Press.

Last-place Kansas City held the whip hand today in a sizzling three-club battle for the last two berths in the American Association playoffs which may turn out to be a slide-rule affair when the league race closes tomorrow.

Key to the playoff snarl apparently rested in a four-game series between fourth-place St. Paul and the much belted Blues, with whom the Saints shared the cellar last season. The Saints who meet the Blues twice tonight, are only five percentage points ahead of fifth-place Columbus, 1943 playoff winner, and trail third-spot Louisville by two games.

The Colonels—if they lose their three remaining games with second-place Toledo—still can sag to fifth place, but the week-end showdown mainly embroils the Saints and the Red Birds, the latter meeting Indianapolis tonight in the opener of a three-game set.

Should the Blues spill the Saints twice tonight while Columbus wins from the Tribe, the Red Birds would move into fourth place by one-game margin. A split, however, would keep St. Paul ahead by four percentage points. A double triumph by St. Paul and a Red Bird defeat would just miss clinching things for the Saints, since a Sunday sweep by the Blues while Columbus was taking two from Indianapolis would deadlock both clubs at .556.

On the other hand, if St. Paul and Columbus win all their remaining games and Louisville loses its last three, the Saints would wind up with .570, the Red Birds with .562 and the Colonels with .561.

In yesterday's league skirmishing, the Saints divided with Milwaukee, 1-4 and 9-0, leaving the pace-setting Brewers six games ahead of the Mud Hens, who trimmed Indianapolis, 6-1. The Red Birds edged the Colonels, 1-0. The Millers divided a twin bill with the Blues, 5-2 and 9-11.

Purple, Gold Will Open Slate With 10 Lettermen

Expecting plenty of trouble from their Brooke county rivals, Chester High's gridders, with 10 letter winners in the starting lineup, will pry off the lid on the 1944 season this afternoon at Wellsburg.

Admitting that the Wellsburg eleven always is rugged, Coach Max Tuttle, beginning his second year at the helm of the Purple and Gold gridmen, is giving his charges no better than an even choice to take today's contest in the Brooke county seat.

Open 8-Game Card

Unbeaten and unscored upon last year when they swept through a seven-game schedule, the Tuttlemen open an eight-game card today. Coach Tuttle took 21 players to the site of the game early this afternoon.

Before departing the veteran mentor said he will start Jack Huff and Donza Graham at the terminals, Ralph Huffman and George Chapman at the tackles, Bill Milby and Harld Ciccarelli at the guards, and his one-armed star, Bob Dawson, at the pivot. All won their spurs last year except Chapman who saw only reserve service.

A veteran quartet of backs with speed and power, with Quarterback Wayne Harpold and Fullback Wilbur Staley as the spearheads, should give the Wellsburg eleven many anxious moments today. Paul Barnhart at left half and Bob Miller at right half gives Coach Tuttle a pair of break-away runners with the ability to cut loose any time for pay dirt.

Harpold Named Captain

Harpold, playing his fourth season, has been named captain of the team for the season.

Others in the Purple and Gold Squad likely to see action today are Ends Sam Balmenti and Harry Lutton, Tackle Frank Snowden, Guards Bob Robinson, John Chaney and Bob Allison, Center John Rice and Halfbacks Ken Marshall and George Hissam.

Two other candidates who were coming along fast when laid low by injuries are Tom Rector, who received a chipped bone in his elbow and Bill Ferguson, who suffered a knee injury. Rector will be out for six weeks and Ferguson has been sidelined for at least three weeks, Coach Tuttle said.

With 10 Lettermen Back, Coach Roach Looks Forward To Successful Campaign; Eight Games Scheduled

Special To The Review.

His ball-toting quartet, all veterans who will take the field against the Blue Wave this afternoon, are Kenny Watson, Dorhman Boyles, Ray Kempf and Dick Rogers.

Six more lettermen will be opening holes for that foursome today. They are Ends Jim Wells and Floyd Brant, Tackle Junior Atwell, Guards Sam Rossi and Art Musmanno and Center Bobby Wycoff.

The Blue Raiders, after today's game among other teams, will meet Chester in a home-and-home arrangement, Newell and Salineville later in the season.

British Get Big Feet

Sport Chatter

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—This corner can't produce any proof that Detroit will win that American league pennant tussle, but at this stage the Tigers seem to rate the pick (and whose neck is sticking out, anyway?). The schedules favor the western clubs over the Yanks and Red Sox; the Browns don't seem to be in any shape to take advantage of that edge; the Tigers have more real major leaguers than any of their rivals in Doc Cramer, Dick Wakefield, Pinky Higgins, Rudy York, etc. And there's no use trying to laugh off those two 20-game pitchers when the other clubs don't have even one.

Shorts and shells.

When leading Aircraftsman George Hall, who'll play here tomorrow with the RAF navigation school soccer team from Hamilton, Ont., was a member of the Sheffield United team in England, the club insured his feet against injury for $125,000. Notre Dame's football prospects are looking up with the news that Pat Filley will be able to play most of the season although his August knee operation will keep him out of early games. Utah's N. C. A. A. champion basketball team and St. John's, the invitation tournament winner, will repeat their Red Cross court tilt in the Garden this winter with virtually the same lineups.

Navy Lt. Bill Dickey has been named manager of the Navy All-Star baseball team which will tackle the Army All Stars in Hawaii soon. On his first day out for football practice at Fort Sheridan, Ill., Pvt. Bob Krestel, 18-year-old rookie from Michigan State college and Swissvale, Pa., amazed the coaches by heaving passes ranging from 45 to 65 yards. Before he could draw equipment for drill the next day, Bob was transferred to another post for basic training. And the college coaches still moan because they expect to lose a few players in mid-season.

6 OHIO COLLEGES OPEN GRID TODAY

Earliest Season Opening In Years For Some Teams

By HAROLD HARRISON
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9—The calendar says summer still has a couple of weeks to run but the great autumn sport of football makes its appearance in Ohio today.

A half-dozen Buckeye colleges had games carded for today or tonight in one of the earliest season openings in years.

There was a reason for the early start. Schools which will use naval and marine trainees know that along about Nov. 1 the present terms will end and the navy is likely to transfer out a lot of the football players.

The coaches learned last year that rebuilding teams in November wasn't so good, so they arranged to start early and quit early this season.

In fact, Bowling Green, which will meet Miami at Toledo tonight, got under way a week ago, squeezing out a one-point victory over Central Michigan Teachers at Mt. Pleasant Mich.

The game tonight will be the first for Miami.

Ohio Wesleyan and Case also were down for a night engagement at Cleveland. Both teams are more or less unknown quantities but Coach George Gauthier of Wesleyan has insisted the Bishops have one of the most inexperienced squads in history.

At Granville, Denison was to get back into the football picture after a one-year layoff. Alma (Mich.) college provides the opposition.

Baldwin-Wallace was the other Ohio college team due to see action. The Yellow Jackets were in Rochester, N. Y., for a game with the University of Rochester. Rochester is coached by Elmer Burnham, who last year directed Purdue to a tie for the Big Ten championship.

BROWN PLANS CHANGE IN SAILORS' OFFENSE

By The Associated Press.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 9—The Great Lakes' football team may employ the customary Bluejacket T-formation when it opens against Fort Sheridan here a week from today, but Coach Paul Brown plans to replace it soon with an "Ohio State offensive."

Brown, who recently supplanted Lt. Cmdr. Paul D. "Tony" Hinkle, athletic officer, as head coach, achieved brilliant success at Massillon (Ohio) High school and later at Ohio State with a single wing-back formation.

Yankees Stop Red Sox, Regain American Lead

TAKE 1-GAME MARGIN AS BROWNS LOSE, 9-5

1944 Version Of Murderer's Row Busting League Wide Open; In Last 11 Tilts Get 132 Hits, 91 Runs

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Yankee bats, roaring a .328 marching tune in copping 10 of their last 11 games, boosted the New Yorkers into undisputed possession of first place in the American league today, a full game on top of St. Louis and a game and a half ahead of idle Detroit.

Week-end action may alter the situation but the 1944 version of famed murderer's row was busting the league open.

Shade Bosox, 7-6

When the McCarthy clan eased out a 7-to-6 victory over the Red Sox in 12 innings yesterday, the totals for the last 11 games went to 132 hits in 403 at bats, producing 91 runs, better than eight a game.

Boston gave the leaders both barrels, coming from behind three times and pulling to within one of a tie with the bases loaded and none out before their drive ran down in the third overtime frame.

St. Louis hopes soared when Bob Muncrief went to the firing line after passing up his starting turn for 12 days due to elbow trouble but Chicago spurted in the late innings to knock the Browns out of a tie for the lead, 9-5.

Browns' Muncrief Fades

Muncrief faded for a pinch-hitter when the Brownies rallied to tie in the seventh so Al Hollingsworth took the rap.

Mickey Haefner shut out the Philadelphia A's with five hits, 4-0, last night in earning his 10th for Washington. Detroit and Cleveland were not scheduled.

Brooklyn won the only tilt listed in the National by a 4-to-3 margin over the Phillies despite Buster Adams' 15th homer.

Shoun, Sewell Mound Foes In Crucial Series

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 9 — Since Clyde Shoun threw a no-hitter against the Boston Braves early in the season he's had trouble winning ball games at Crosley field for the Cincinnati Reds.

Today, Shoun starts against the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second of a four-game series. His opponent is Rip Sewell, the "blooper ball" specialist.

The Reds, trailing the Pirates by five full games, hope to bring Frankie Frisch's athletes within reaching distance in their last home stay of the year.

FORBES FIELD FIGHTS ON CARD FOR MONDAY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 9 — One of the best punching shows of the year is scheduled to ring down the curtain on outdoor boxing for 1944 next Monday night at Forbes field when the Rooney-McGinley Co. will present a program featuring three 10-rounders as follows:

Jose Basora vs. Ossie "Bulldog" Harris.

Juste Fontaine vs. Sammy Parrotta.

Phil Muscato vs. Mose Brown.

There isn't an outstanding name on the card but each match presages plenty of action as all six fighters cast science to the wind and rely on punching prowess to get them through.

Joe Louis' Punch Put The Rollers Under Him

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Harold Steinman owes Joe Louis a debt he'll never be able to pay.

When the Brown Bomber kayoed Johnny Paychek in Madison Square Garden, March 29, 1940, he knocked Steinman out of the fight game into roller skating.

Before flashing back on the events leading up to the payoff punch, take a quick look at the thankful Mr. Steinman. He's made a big success as the boss of "Roller Skating Vanities," a super rinks show.

Movie-Like Life

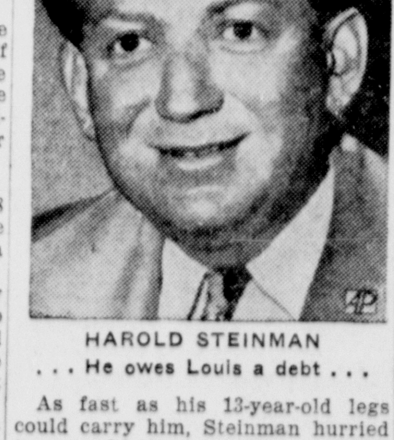
Born in Austin, Minn., about 38 years ago, Harold's life reads like something that usually turns into a movie.

He went to school, but not very much, because he had to work to help his parents. That included all the odd jobs a kid can get. But the role Steinman remembers most was that of newsboy.

"I learned a lot from selling papers," he beams, "a lot about people and how to deal with them. It has helped me plenty through the years.

"When I see a paper boy today, I treat him with the same respect as a big businessman. Don't forget the kid on the corner is the executive of tomorrow."

Harold has always been on the alert for something to promote or sell. Take the time the first World War armistice was signed. When the whistles tooted, he was out peddling papers.



HAROLD STEINMAN
. . . He owes Louis a debt . . .

As fast as his 13-year-old legs could carry him, Steinman hurried to a whistle manufacturer and bought up all the noisemakers he could find at 10 cents a dozen.

In two hours he had made $90.

"I heard whistles ringing in my ears for months," he says, describing the result of his efforts.

Asked To Handle Levinsky

As the years moved in, he peddled sport novelties, became a fight manager, pinball machine salesman, entertainment booker, "Southern fried chicken" shack owner, and a few other things.

He was already established in boxing when Kingfish Levinsky's parents and sister, Lena, asked him to handle the colorful King.

The fight chapter in Steinman's life would make a book. He was always making or promoting a champ or a contender.

He worked on Paychek for two years to build him up to a title spot. Then came the big night—and Johnny quit under Louis' hard fists.

"I could have stopped right there," shrugs Harold, "if I hadn't learned about the value of things. Experience is a great teacher, so I went ahead and tried again.

"While I was in Hollywood with some of my fighters, an old actor told me: Always be the first to try out an idea. It doesn't have to be original. Very few ideas are. But be the first to do something, and you'll make money.

"Well, I had fooled around a lot with ice skaters—brought quite a few of them to this country from Europe. One night I happened into a roller skating rink and the flash came to me: Why not a roller skating show?

"I went all over the country, studied rinks and skaters. When I had all the information I needed, I hunted up four old pals in Minneapolis, told them about the idea, got some money from them, and started 'Skating Vanities.' This is our third year.

"What success I have had anybody could have. I've always tried to take things as they come, do the best I can, and not try to force any issues."

Seven Southeast Elevens Return To Gridiron

By CHICK HOSCH
AP Newsfeatures

ATLANTA—"They're loaded for bear!"

That's the opinion of each coach in the Southeastern conference in speaking of the 1944 football as the other ten will play it.

Surprisingly though, a few of them have climbed off the sagging mourner's bench long enough to admit that they, too, expect to have a "pretty good team."

And, sitting there, they are generally agreed on two things—the entire situation is decidedly "Snafu" and the league won't join the eastern rules revolution.

Eleven teams will toe the mark this year, where only four teed off in 1943. Vanderbilt is the lone member sticking to that "we're through for the duration" proclamation, issued last season as Tulane, Georgia Tech, Georgia and Louisiana State decided to keep the fire going.

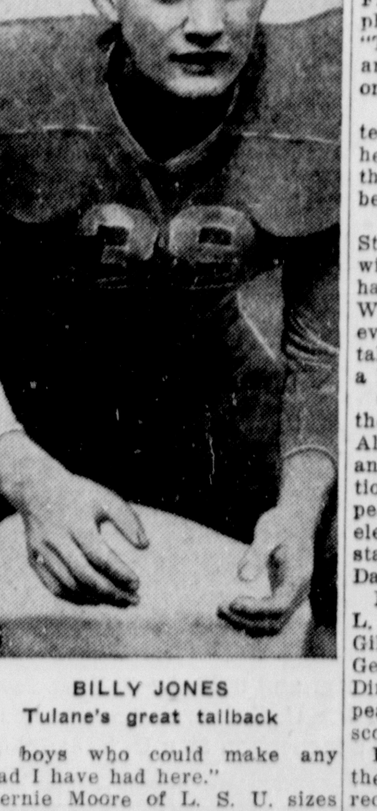
Two of this quartet—Tulane and Georgia Tech—will again have the assistance of navy trainees. The other nine will base their hopes on 4-Fs, ex-servicemen and 17-year-olds, the latter in the majority.

While the rosters of the seven teams staging a comeback show an occasional "veteran" of 1942, Tulane has 11 lettermen, Georgia and L. S. U. each have nine, and Georgia Tech an undertermined number since the squad hasn't been checked since spring practice.

Changes in the pre-war picture include one new coach — Carl Voyles at Auburn, late of William and Mary—and decisions by Kentucky, Mississippi and Georgia to switch to the "T" formation.

From one end of the bench, Coach Bill Alexander, entering his 25th year at Georgia Tech, says: "I think we will all be in very much the same class this year."

Harry Mehre of Mississippi, declares his coming team will be "fair . . . maybe on a par with the better freshmen teams we've had," but Frank Thomas, with a new 5-year contract at Alabama, comes up with this, after watching summer practice: "There are quite a few boys who could make any squad I have had here."



BILLY JONES
Tulane's great tailback

Bernie Moore of L. S. U. sizes up his Orange Bowl champions with:: "We will have a better team than last year . . . but it all depends on what our opponents have, rather than what material we have."

Voyles discloses that his Auburn eleven will operate from a formation with an unbalanced line, an unbalanced backfield, and a man-in-motion. He tabs his backfield as considerably stronger.

John Barnhill, sizing up his Tennessee prospects, says bluntly: "It will be somewhere between the team we had in 1942, in the Sugar bowl, and no team at all, which we had last year." Tom Lieb of Florida, echoes Barnhill's words, phrased a trifle differently, with "They're a grand bunch; spirited and aggressive," in commenting on his own team.

Ab Kirwan of Kentucky, after ten weeks of summer practice said he expects a "good" season and that the quality of his players "is better than we had expected."

Allyn McKeen of Mississippi State, says the success of his team will depend on what the opposition has, but is expecting a "fair team." Wally Butts of Georgia, beaten in every conference game last year, takes about the same stand, after a hard summer's practice.

Claude Simon of Tulane, despite the presence of Joe Renfroe, his All-Southeastern back last year, and Billy Jones, a tailback sensation in 1943, says he doesn't expect his team to match the 1943 eleven. Tulane gets off to a late start, with a bang, meeting Notre Dame at South Bend, Oct. 7.

Renfroe, Jones, Gene Knight of L. S. U., Johnny Hite and Harry Gilmer at Alabama, Al Perl at Georgia, and Frank Broyles and Dinkey Bowen at Georgia Tech, appear to be the best prospective scorers.

Bowen, unchallenged claimant to the nation's high school scoring record last year with better than 200 points, should fit in nicely with the fast-breaking Tech offensive.

U.S. AID BARES HOW JAPAN GOT VALUABLE DATA

Says Information Streamed To Nipponese 10 Years Before Pearl Harbor

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—A justice department spokesman said Friday that for 10 years before Pearl Harbor "a constant stream" of technical and economic data "of the utmost importance to Japan's armed forces" flowed to the Japanese as a result of Japanese commercial transactions with American firms.

James S. Martin, chief of the department's economic warfare section, told a senate military subcommittee that "the Japanese were able to get technical 'know-how' on some processes for production of 100-octane aviation gasoline before they were generally available to American firms."

In a prepared statement, Mr. Martin said "the branches of industry especially involved in the commercial transactions were the oil, aircraft and aircraft parts, machinery and tools, and some specialized branches of the electrical and electronics industries."

He said the Universal Oil Products Co. made available to the department the files of its commercial arrangements with Japanese firms and that other information was gained from the seized files of former Japanese trading companies with offices in the United States.

He said that in 1938 negotiations to "rights to process for the Japan Gasoline Co. resulted in a proposal whereby Universal would give to the Japanese company options to "rights to process for the manufacture of iso-octane, the blending fluid used in the production of 100 octane gasoline" and "to acquire rights under all of Universal's processes in the entire petroleum field" and added:

"In compliance with the terms of this iso-octane agreement, Universal immediately prepared designs for the construction of two iso-octane units for the Mitsubishi Oil Co. and Nippon Oil Co., licensees of the Japan Gasoline Co.

Plant designs were delivered to the Japanese and in 1939 Universal engineers were sent to Japan to aid in the construction of these iso-octane plants."

He added that after the state department's "moral embargo" against Japan, Universal informed the Japan Gasoline Co. that the 1938 agreements would have to be suspended, whereupon the Japanese firm filed suit against Universal for $10,000,000. The outbreak of war postponed the trial.

FRENCH RULE SOUGHT ALONG LINES OF U.S.

Resistance Groups Support De Gaulle As President

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 9—A new French republic founded along the lines of the U. S. government, with Charles de Gaulle installed as the first president—as "the George Washington of France"—was advocated Friday by a powerful federation of French resistance groups.

This coalition would launch the Fourth Republic of France as soon as the war ends and political and war prisoners can be returned from Germany.

The federation, known as the "Mouvement de la Liberation Nationale," embraces groups controlling six of the most influential former underground newspapers in France, all published daily in Paris.

The directors, all publishers, are Philippe Viannay; Robert Salmon, who is also a member of the National Council of Resistance; Jean Jurgenson, and Aly Black, whose father was an American.

"Our federation is Socialist, even tending toward Communist," said Jurgensen. "We want nothing of the old government. It brought about the ruin of France."

Coordinated Agencies Advised By Committee In Aiding Servicemen

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 9—The 58-member Governor's Committee to provide assistance to war veterans recommended at its first meeting Friday coordination of all local agencies rendering aid to servicemen.

"Within every county, and within the larger cities, there are enough agencies to perform all needed services. The real need at the present time is not for creating new service agencies. Therefore, I recommend the organization of county and local coordinating committees to undertake this task."

In approving the proposal, the committee said organization of coordinating groups should be the responsibility of the county head and the mayor of each county seat.

Functions of the local groups, the committee said, would be to determine the types of services needed locally and to provide information to members of the armed forces.

War An Old Story

Germany Has Known Plenty Of Invaders

Julius Caesar Battled Way To Rhine Once; Others Have Been On Soil

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Ever since the legions of Julius Caesar smashed to the Rhine in 59 B.C., the soil of what now is Germany has been stained frequently with the blood of war.

If the Allies meet stiff battle in the reich, history will be repeating itself on old battlefields.

Wars in Germany raged for centuries as small factions and large contested for this hard core of Europe. Wars were fought by greedy princes, ambitious rulers of church and state inside Europe, and empire builders seeking to subdue the Germanic people.

The history of modern Germany may be said to begin in 843 when, by the Treaty of Verdun, the empire of Charles the Great was divided among his grandsons.

Louis the German received the eastern portion of the Frankish empire, composed of the Germanic peoples. The rest passed into four countries, each ruled by its own duke.

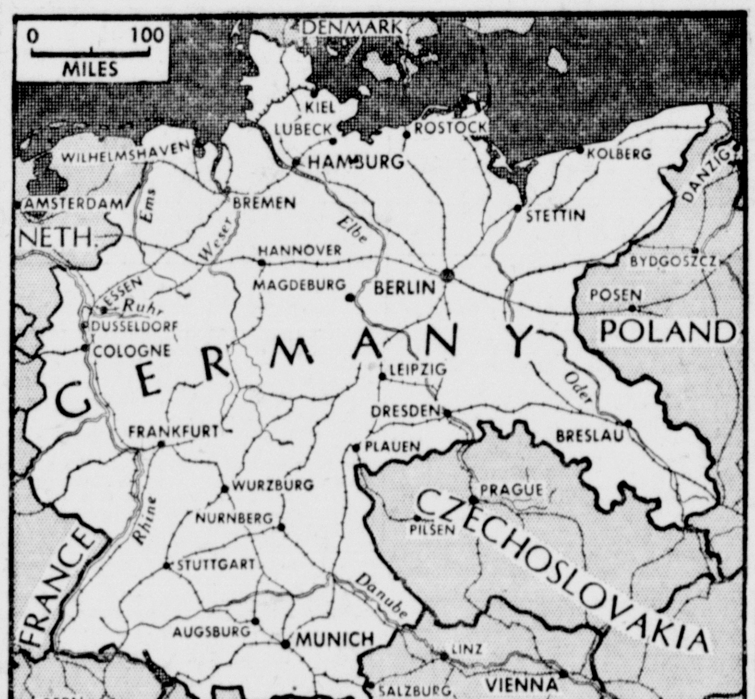
Among the fiercest invasions of German soil was one undertaken by Hungarian horsemen in 924. Battles raged for 31 years at intervals until Hungary finally was defeated.

Holy wars, in which Germanic factions were divided over the Catholic and Protestant churches, went on inside Germany intermittently from 1314 to 1648. Then, following the "30 Years' War", religious rights were granted to sovereign Catholic and Protestant princes in the empire.

Prussianism inside Germany was established after bloody contests with Austria, during which Maria Theresa of Austria invaded Bavaria during a campaign in which Frederick the Great sought to annex Silesia to the empire, a plan which eventually succeeded.

Germany came under French guns when Napoleon defeated Frederick William in 1792. Napoleon put a temporary end to strife between Prussia and Austria by separating the two in the treaty which set up the Confederation of the Rhine. When Napoleon met his downfall, however, Germany reestablished its own confederation at the Congress of Vienna in 1815.

Lately, the Germans have done most of their fighting on other people's soil. French armies stormed through German-held Alsace Lorrane in 1914, but were beaten back, and in 1939, during the "paper war" which preceded the heavy fighting between the Allies and Germany in 1940, there were opposing forces, the French frequently sending small units across the frontier.



'CRUCIAL DAYS HERE,' M'NUTT TELLS GROUP

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt declared Friday the United Nutt declared Friday the United States is "in the most crucial period we have experienced since the war production program began".

Testifying on post-war reconversion problems before the senate war investigating committee, Mr. McNutt cautioned that not even the European phase of the war is won and asserted that manpower problems will not disappear with the collapse of Germany.

"They will change sharply in character and in many ways become infinitely more complex," he testified.

Mr. McNutt asserted that war production must have priority on manpower until Japan is defeated.

"The 48-hour work week requirement cannot be relaxed in all plants immediately," he told the committee. "If for no other reason, it will have to be maintained in certain war production plants so that workers' overtime earnings will offset the inducements that will be offered to transfer to civilian employment, which should not be operating on the 48-hour week."

NAZI BRUTALITY TOLD BY KIN OF LOCAL MAN

From a little village near Naples comes a shocking story of what happened when the Nazis marched into Italy—and when the invaders were thrown out.

There is an undertone of determination, too, in the letter, received by Feliciano Rossi, 125 West Second st., from his brother, Michele, who lives in the hamlet of S'Danto.

"This is a true accounting of the Nazi brutality towards the conquered civilians of Italy. Michele is the father of two sons who were taken by the Germans to labor camps as were the sons of his two sisters. No word has been heard from any of them.

"The families were forced to evacuate their homes and take refuge in wine cellars.

"The Nazis took all food, clothing and whatever else they desired. Upon leaving, they carted away all remaining food stuffs.

"This little village, with a population of only 100, had 27 able-bodied men torn from their families and sent as slave labor to the reich. The population of this village suffered for three months prior to the entry of the Allies on which occasion their joy knew no bounds. It was a real cause for celebration as they emerged from their underground holes and cheered their Allied liberators".

Another East Liverpool brother, Patsy Rossi, Walnut st., also received a letter from Michele last week.

Anniversary congratulations were received also from Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the British Imperial general staff, and from Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean area.

'POLIO' PUZZLE TO SCIENTISTS; CAUSE OBSCURE

Many Are Infected Without Knowing It; Adults Seem To Build Immunity

By HENRY LESESNE
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 9—You may have had infantile paralysis or "polio" and never known it; you may have had so many small doses of it that you're immune.

That's how medical science explains, in the light of the little that is known about the baffling disease, the fact that polio usually strikes only children. The children haven't had time to develop immunity.

How could one have polio and not know it? The case might be so mild it was hardly noticeable, let alone diagnosed. You naturally hear only about the severe cases.

During epidemics, says Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., many people are infected yet their symptoms are so slight they aren't recognized. They recover promptly, completely.

In only a few cases do the symptoms progress and paralysis and muscle weaknesses develop. And in about half of these the disabilities disappear of their own accord, without any special treatment.

They're 'Carriers'

Persons with the mild, unrecognizable cases are carriers of the polio virus unknowingly. According to Dr. Gudakunst, it has been demonstrated repeatedly in the last few years that seemingly healthy persons can carry the virus without developing any symptoms of illness.

For every patient showing paralysis there may be 10 or even 100 or more milder cases with no paralysis. These cases naturally are not among those reported to local health officers.

Even in the worst epidemics, there are relatively few "reportable" cases. Large cities seldom report more than 100 cases to 1,000,000 population. The 1943 total was 12,429 and so far this year, Dr. Gudakunst says, there have been one-third more cases reported than for the comparable period last year, with the worst outbreak centered in the Piedmont and Upper Piedmont areas of North Carolina.

No one can predict what the full picture for this year will be. But one thing is fairly certain, on the basis of past experience, August and September are the "peak" months, and with the coming of the cold months the danger will subside. However, a few scattered cases appear throughout the year.

The fight against infantile paralysis is better organized, better equipped and better financed this year than ever before. American people contributed an all-time record or $10,973,491 to the 1944 appeal of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The money is raised through the "March of Dimes" and President's birthday celebrations each year.

Half the money raised each year is left in the area in which it was contributed, to finance the foundation's chapted serving that section. The remainder is used by the national foundation for research, education and epidemic aid.

The chapters care for the polio victims in their areas and there is a chapted in nearly every county in the United States. In times of epidemics, the national foundation sends emergency funds, technicians, equipment and epidemiologists into the affected areas.

Polio epidemics generally do not sweep the country. The outbreaks usually affect only certain cities, towns or parts of states. The worst epidemic—in 1916 when there were more than 27,000 cases—was confined largely to a few states along the Atlantic seabord.

Little Understood

Dr. Gudakunst cites these facts about polio: no one can foretell exactly just when or where an epidemic will break out; there is no means of prevention or cure, only palliative treatment; no positive knowledge of exactly how the disease is spread.

Research is going on constantly in scores of laboratories, hospitals and universities. Most of the research is supported by the national foundation. While the goal seems a long way off, more has been learned about polio in the last 10 years than in the previous 100.

No one knows as yet how the filterable virus, too small to be seen even under powerful microscopes, enters the human body. Maybe it's breathed or swallowed. Personal contact may be the answer. Maybe food or milk. Flies in epidemic areas have been shown to carry the virus. Mosquitos have been infected experimentally in laboratories.

The unanswerable questions are endless. In winter where does the invading organism lurk? Why does it appear only in the summer?

A number of epidemiologists, working under grants from the national foundation, are in the stricken North Carolina areas searching for clues. Here, or in any number of other places, the answer may be found tomorrow or 10 years from tomorrow. Or some Ehrlich may come upon a "magic bullet" that will do for polio what salvarsan did for syphilis.

YOUTH SCOURGE—Poliomyelitis is called "infantile paralysis" because it usually strikes only children. Science now believes that adults develop immunity to the disease. Here are children being treated with hot packs and massage.

PRESIDENT SAYS ITALY NEEDS AID

Points To Devastation Left By Germans In Flight

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Asserting that much of Italy has been devastated by war, President Roosevelt said Friday that her 45,000,000 people—living in an area less than the size of California and with poor natural resources—will need additional assistance from the Allies if she is to stand on her own feet.

He told his news conference that Brig. Gen. William O'Dwyer, American economic officer in Italy, has returned to the United States and will talk with him at the White House about plans for this new aid.

The President said the Germans in fleeing northward on the Italian boot have destroyed many utilities and that north of Rome alone they have wiped out 90 per cent of the electric power plants.

Roads and bridges also have been torn up, the whole work of devastation creating a shortage of food, clothing and medical supplies and a problem of distribution to prevent starvation, Mr. Roosevelt stated.

He said so far Great Britain and the United States have sent in more than $100,000,000 worth of all kinds of supplies. Fuel supplies have been furnished mostly by England, with a big part of the food coming from the United States.

The President emphasized that such supplies are not gifts and that such civilian goods being moved in were incident to the military situation.

Argentine Press Hits Hull

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 9—The nationalist newspaper Cabildo asserted "Hull Again Insults Argentina" in a first page banner over U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull's declaration that Argentina is the headquarters of a fascist movement in the western hemisphere.

PATTERSON, TITO MEET IN ITALY. Marshal Tito, head of Yugoslavia's national liberation army and Partisan detachments, and U. S. Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson are shown in Italy where they met during Mr. Patterson's recent tour.

Are You Driving
To An Accident?

In spite of the fact that there is less driving and fewer cars on the road, the accident rate is climbing. Smooth tires, worn brakes, faulty steering assemblies and plain wear all spell DANGER.

Probably most accidents are the result of NEGLECT. The driver who neglects his car is driving straight to an accident. Take the detour to Ray Birch's and let our mechanics take the risk out of driving.

The Gallup Poll Finds:

STATE CONTROL IS FAVORED FOR JOBLESS SETUP

But Almost Equal Number Of People Support Federal Direction Of Plan

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute Of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 9—One of the issues in recent congressional debates on unemployment compensation provisions for veterans and other workers after the war is whether administration of the program should be left to the states or to the federal government.

The public is almost evenly divided on the question, with a slight majority among those with opinions in favor of leaving the job with the states.

Question Is Given

In measuring sentiment on the issue, the Institute had field reporters ask a representative sample of voters this question:

"Should unemployment payments be handled by each state government or by the federal government in Washington?"

Among those with opinions, the replies are:

Think Problem Should be Handled by States	52%
Think Problem Should be handled by Federal Government...	48%

About one in five with whom field reporters for the Poll talked say they have no opinion at this time.

State Plan Passed

In congress, the senate finally passed the George bill rather than the Murray-Kilgore bill. The George bill leaves unemployment compensation up to the states, while the Murray-Kilgore bill would have made it a federal job.

The house last week passed an amended form of the George bill which the senate had earlier passed by a 55-19 vote. The house version also leaves the administration and financing of the program to the states themselves. House and senate conferees are now ironing out differences to arrive at a common measure.

Recent polls show an overwhelming majority of the public favoring unemployment allowances for returning soldiers who might be out of a job after the war.

But, the Institute finds, nearly as large a majority oppose similar payments to war workers who might find themselves unemployed after the war.

JET PROPULSION AIDS CARRIER TAKE-OFFS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—Navy carrier-based planes and flying boats have reduced take-off runs 33 to 60 percent and greatly increased loads by the use of jet propulsion devices attached to the wings, the navy disclosed Friday.

By using the units, known as Jatos, each of which delivers a thrust equivalent to about 330 horsepower, fighter planes can cut their take-off run in half and get into the air much more quickly than in conventional operation.

"This means that navy carriers can use more deck space for planes and get more planes, more heavily loaded, into the air sooner," the navy reported.

"It means that the planes can rendezvous more quickly to attack or defend and it means safer take-offs."

The first test in March, 1943, was doubly important to the pilot, Capt. William L. Gore, formerly of Pittsburgh.

Capt. Gore believed enough in the jet-assisted take-off to spend his money on experiments.

PROGRESS REPORTED IN WELLSVILLE DRIVE

Contributions to the drive for $700 to repaint Wellsville's honor roll and to provide funds for going-away kits for servicemen have passed the half-way mark, Earl Bake, chairman of the Citizens Goodwill committee and the honor roll board committee, said today.

Follow-up calls in the house-to-house canvass will be made to reach the remainder of the goal. A dollar a home will put the drive over the top," sponsors said.

Mr. Bake asked that any corrections on names of boys or girls in the service not appearing on the present board, be given to William Lownds by Wednesday, as the Glenn Sign Co. will begin work early next week on renovations to the board.

Potatoes first were discovered by white men in Colombia, South America, in 1538.

COMPANY DEFIES WLB PAY RULING

Regional Board Asks Strong Action Against Gypsum

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 — The national war labor board was recommended to take "appropriately vigorous" action against the United States Gypsum Co. by the regional WLB after the firm Friday refused to comply with a WLB directive ordering wage increases for 120 employes at the Jersey City (N. J.) plant.

"The company has decided not to abide by the advice of the government or by its directive," said Charles M. Price, representing the company, of which Sewell L. Avery is chairman of the board, at a hearing yesterday before Board Chairman Thomas L. Norton.

A local of the United Mine Workers, of which the employes are members, said the firm refused to grant wage increases ordered by the board unless the union agrees to drop from its contract the maintenance of membership and dues check-off clause, as ordered by the board. The union added that the company also wants changes in arbitration and seniority provisions of the agreement.

In a message to the national WLB reporting the company's refusal, the regional board said: "Accordingly, the regional board refers the case to the national board with the unanimous recommendation that the national board take appropriately vigorous action to obtain the company's full and prompt compliance."

The company said in a prepared statement it "objects to a maintenance of membership provision whereby employes who are members of the union after a certain date must, as a condition of employment, continue to maintain their membership in good standing".

It added it also opposes the check-off because it places the company "in the position of compelling employes to pay their dues".

MAN 'FEATHERS' NEST WITH TAR, GETS STUCK

By The United Press.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 9—While a nurse administered sedatives, police worked for 40 minutes Friday to chip and cut Ignatz C. Bonikonis free from a pile of tar on which he had fallen asleep.

Bonikonis, a 58-year-old Brooklyn railroad worker, had gone to sleep early yesterday on the ground in a vacant lot where an asphalt plant formerly was located.

Two men heard cries for help and found Bonikonis sunk in a 10-inch pile of tar with only his right arm free. Police had to cut off Bonikonis' clothing before they could free him.

They said the tar, softened by warm weather, apparently had been softened further by the heat of Bonikonis' body.

WILSON TAKES OLD JOB AT GENERAL ELECTRIC

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Charles E. Wilson was placed back in his old job as president of General Electric Co. Friday by the board of directors.

He quit as executive vice chairman of the war production board several weeks ago in a row with Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson over reconversion policies and internal administrative affairs.

Mr. Wilson went to the WPB in September, 1942, to be, in the words of Mr. Nelson, "top production authority in the war program charged with seeing to it that programs and schedules for all phases of our war effort are met". He was a dollar-a-year man.

A Quick Glance At The World's News . . .

From Washington—

Warn Of Paralysis Danger

The 1944 outbreak of infantile paralysis may reach the highest peak since the 1916 epidemic when 27,363 cases were reported, medical witnesses Friday told the house sub-committee investigating aid to physically handicapped.

"The number of reported cases up to September of this year has risen above 1943, one of the highest years since 1916," Dr. A. L. Van Horn of the children's bureau testified. "Since 1935, all but half a dozen states have experienced epidemics."

Dr. Van Horn said that today more than 67,000 children, crippled because of infantile paralysis, are registered with state agencies. The vast majority of these, he added, are under 10.

COLUMBUS — Triplet baby daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lauderback, all becoming ill suddenly, died within 12 hours, it was disclosed Friday. They were born last March 19.

Jeanette died Wednesday evening of what her parents thought was a "summer complaint." Janice died at 6 a. m. Thursday, and Janet an hour later. They were the Lauderbacks' only children.

A Pattern For The Nation

'Guinea Pig' Surplus Auction At Ashland Termed Success

By The Associated Press.

ASHLAND, O., Sept. 9—With first-day earnings of $5,500, the Defense Plant Corp.'s "guinea pig" auction of surplus property is a success and will be copied in similar auctions throughout the country, government officials indicated today.

John Van Ginhoven of Nashville, Tenn., DPC engineer for a 10-state area, reported similar surplus goods sales probably will be held at sites of the nation's 1,500 regular livestock auctions.

Sales Friday netted more than $5,500 as three-fourths of the material to be offered went under the auctioneer's hammer, Gene Van Tilburg of the Farmers Livestock Sales Co. reported.

With the end of the auction today, more than 500 items gathered from Cleveland DPC installations will have been sold to private buyers and dealers, the auctioning firm representative said.

High Prices Protested

The sale, held at the Ashland county fairgrounds because this community of 12,000 is considered typical of the midwest, included surplus goods appraised by government agencies at from $13,000 to $15,000.

On the block went monkey wrenches, posthole diggers, rubber boots, industrial helmets, crow bars, heating stoves, wire, hand drills and bits, assorted hammers and rubber hose. Two electric welding machines brought the top prices of $200 each.

H. F. Stotzer, an Archbold (O.) hardware dealer and member of the Ohio small business commission, joined J. B. Conklin of Columbus, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Hardware association, in protesting high prices paid for second-hand material.

Term Sale Successful

"For example," Mr. Stotzer explained, "a used sledge hammer was purchased for 40 cents, yet it would sell for 35 cents over the average hardware store counter."

He emphasized dealers are not interested in used materials, but are concerned with the effect large surplus DPC sales might have on small businessmen.

Representatives of the DPC and war food administration, which cooperated in the auction, agreed the sale was a success. Capt. John H. Stambaugh of Valparaiso, Ind., WFA official, declared the auction "will accomplish its purpose" of selling as rapidly as possible to the largest number of users.

Clyde Z. Zehner of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's triple-A chairman, said he will recommend adoption of the DPC auction program in his state.

50 MEN ESCAPE BLAZE AT MINE IN MAHONING

By The Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 9 — Fifty miners escaped through an air shaft when fire of undetermined origin broke out in the American Fire Clay mine south of here.

Officials said the fire began at the foot of a slope, 80 feet underground, as the men were going to work. About 50 had passed the spot. The mine employs about 80 men. Mine workers and firemen from nearby Canfield are fighting the blaze.

The equator is about 24,902 miles long.

IDLE VETERANS WILL BE LISTED

USES To Register Men For Benefits In 'G.I. Bill'

Registration of unemployed veterans of World War II under the provisions of the G. I. bill of rights will start Monday at the office of the United States employment service, Market st.

Totally unemployed veterans will be entitled to allowances of $20 weekly while those partially unemployed will receive $20 per week less any earning in excess of $3.

Self employed veterans also are covered by the law with provisions that they may draw $100 per month, less their net earnings for their business, profession or other vocation.

BUC To Handle Payments

Payments of the allowances will be handled by the bureau of unemployment compensation under agreement with the United States veterans administration, which will provide funds for the payment of the allowances.

Except for those veterans who are self employed, the law requires that veterans must be able to work and available for suitable work and that they register for work at the time of filing their claims. They must show their official discharge or release papers at that time.

Each veteran will be entitled to 24 weeks of payment for his first 90 days of service, which is the minimum period of service to qualify unless discharged for disability incurred in line of service. An additional four weeks of allowances are authorized for each additional month of service with the maximum 52 weeks.

Provide For Those Ill

Provision also is made in the law for the continued payment of allowances to those veterans who become ill or disabled during any week after the start of a period of continuous unemployment.

State unemployment compensation benefits still are available to those veterans with qualifying wage credits based on earnings during the five years prior to their entering service, or the first year after their discharge. However, veterans cannot draw both state and G. I. benefits at the same time.
